65 CHS Graduates Awarded Diplomas

Sixty-five boys and girls of the Circleville community Wednesday had completed high school and were planning for college or full-time work.

Climax of 12 years of study came Tuesday night when diplomas were presented at the 89th annual commencement exercises in Circleville high school auditorium.

"EDUCATION FOR LIFE" was the subject of the commencement address by the Rev. L. C. Sherburne, rector of St. Philip's Episcopal church. He urged the graduates and the audience to develop intellects, culture, morals and religion.

He stated that education is not confined to schools. "A very liberal education can be obtained outside schools. Education goes beyond sports and books". He urged cultivation of tastes in literature, art, music, theatre. He said education was not complete with development of a moral sense. The speaker said this included more than being "good", it included duties to society and said the greatest contribution to the world is individual effort, not thinking as everyone else does.

The Rev. Mr. Sherburne said religion was morality lifted to tenth degree. He closed by stating "education flings a challenge to this class and the public, a call to develop the intellectual, esthetic, moral, and religious in life and live in the best sense of the word, deriving from life the riches and satisfaction".

BIG INDUSTRY PREPARING FOR COAL STRIKE

Dealers Worry About Supply For Homes, Schools, Small Business

PITTSBURGH, June 4—Big industry girded itself today for a possible soft coal strike June 30 when federally operated mines are returned to their owners.

While John L. Lewis and the northern coal operators jockeyed for position in contract negotiations, the steel industry, fabricators, railroads and steel-dependent firms raced against time to build up their coal reserves in anticipation of the miners' traditional policy of "no contract, no work."

A spokesman for the coal operators said the sudden breakdown in negotiations in Washington could mean but one thing—that Lewis will not waive his five major demands and, failing to gain them, he will call out his 400,000 diggers.

At the same time, coal production was at peak levels and every available coal car, river barge and truck were being pressed into service to build up the stockpiles.

COAL RESERVES at industrial plants, some covering many acres, were rapidly growing as steel men sought to forestall possible shutdowns within their own industry in event the strike materializes.

The solid fuels administration reported soft coal production across the nation was 35.6 percent above the 1946 level. Output from January to May 17, 1947, was estimated at 238,727,000 tons as compared with 174,744,000 for the same period in 1946.

Paul Walters, senior at Capital University, has been chosen one of ten students whose name will appear in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters, East Water street, has been a football, basketball and baseball star at Capital. He received the trophy as the outstanding athlete of the college.

He will be graduated from the university June 10 with a bachelor of science in education degree.

DEMAND SHOW DOWN WASHINGTON, June 4—Sen. Eastland (D) Miss., today demanded a "showdown" within the United Nations on what he called Russia's "aggression" in Hungary.

Rationing Of Sugar Nears End

WASHINGTON, June 4—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson told the senate banking committee today that the end of household sugar rationing is drawing "very close."

Anderson said he opposes the McCarthy bill for immediate decontrol of sugar mainly because he fears there might be a rush of buying by industrial users seeking to protect themselves against possible price increases next year.

The agriculture secretary, who administers sugar rationing under the extension to Oct. 31 granted by congress last March, said indications point to a price increase of two and one-half cents a pound when controls come off.

U. S. DEMANDS COUP LETTERS

Documents Reported To Have Forced Resignation Of Hungarian Premier

WASHINGTON, June 4—The United States today demanded copies of documents said to have been used in the Communist-inspired coup which ousted Ferenc Nagy as premier of Hungary.

The demand was made to the Soviet chairman of the allied control council for Hungary. The documents reportedly were used to force Nagy's resignation.

At the same time, it was reliably reported in Washington that Hungarian minister Szegedy-Maszak would ignore the new, pro-Communist Belgrade government's order that he return home for "consultation."

Although the Hungarian legation declined to confirm the report, it was learned from responsible sources that the envoy had made his decision known to the state department.

VIENNA, June 4—Hungarian refugees arrived in Vienna today with reports of suppression and kidnappings by Communist "political police" both within and beyond the borders of Hungary.

He added that he gave these processes to the country without compensation. Garsson was testifying for the third day in the war fraud conspiracy trial of himself, his brother Murray, and Ex-Rep. May (D) Ky.

TRUMAN URGES SOLONS TO VOTE WAR TRAINING

President Declares Program Necessary To Protect U. S. Against Aggression

WASHINGTON, June 4—President Truman declared today that universal military training is necessary to aid in protecting the United States against aggression and to "perpetuate the freedoms for which millions shed their blood."

The chief executive in a letter to congressional leaders urging speedy congressional action on the UMT program, also asserted that it would help to "hasten the advent of universal disarmament and peace through the United Nations."

Mr. Truman, in the letter to Senate President Vandenberg (R) Mich., and House Speaker Martin (R) Mass., transmitting the recent report of the presidential advisory commission in universal training said:

"I urge that the congress give early consideration to the subject of universal training."

MR. TRUMAN noted specifically that the commission found universal military training is:

"...An essential element in an integrated program of national security designed to protect the United States against possible aggression, to perpetuate the freedoms for which millions shed their blood, and to hasten the advent of universal disarmament and peace through the United Nations."

Mr. Truman told congress that the commission, under Chairman Karl T. Compton, atomic bomb scientist and president of (Continued on Page Two)

12 LOST WHEN ORE FREIGHTER SINKS IN LAKE

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 4—Twelve members of the crew of the ore freighter "Emperor" were believed to have perished today when the ship struck a rock and sank in Lake Superior.

The U. S. Coast Guard cutter Kimball rescued 21 members of the crew of the ill-fated ship, owned by the Canadian steamship lines.

Among the missing were two women who were employed in the galley of the Emperor.

The body of one woman was recovered by the Kimball, and it was brought to Ft. William with the 21 survivors.

Among the 11 missing was the master, Capt. Elden Walkinshaw, of Collingwood, Ont., and his first mate, Jack Morey.

The Emperor, a 37-year-old ship of 8,000 tons registry, struck Canoe Rock, one and one-half miles north of Isle Royal, about 3:10 a. m. (EST), and sank within five minutes.

Vets' Homesite Action Planned; Ordinances Up At Long Council Session

Request from the Chamber of Commerce for free installation by the city of water mains and sewage facilities for a war veterans' homesite project will be discussed at a joint conference of city councilmen and spokesmen for the Chamber.

This was decided at the council meeting Tuesday night after a lengthy discussion of the request. Attending the session were members of a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce with John Magill, Chamber president, as spokesman.

Mack D. Parrett, a real estate agent, presented the Chamber's request originally at the May 20 council meeting. Council then took no action. A week ago the board of directors of the Chamber voted to press the matter and the committee was named to attend Tuesday night's council session.

IN OPENING the discussion Mr. Magill reminded council that the Chamber's request was presented May 20 by Mr. Parrett. Mr. Magill said the project needs 780 feet of water lines, 780 feet of sewer lines, and a street cut through.

He said the Chamber of Commerce will make no profit on the civic project which Mr. Magill emphasized is solely for the purpose of providing homes for World War II veterans.

It is hoped to sell all of the 21 lots to veterans within the next two weeks. Mr. Magill disclosed, under conditional sales contracts. The project, he added, is aimed to curtail the existing housing shortage in Circleville.

John C. Goeller, council president, declared that before council could definitely act the Chamber of Commerce must submit plats and maps of the project.

"How much does the Chamber of Commerce have invested in this project?" This is the question put to Mr. Magill by Councilman Robert E. Adkins. "I am not certain but I believe it is about $3,500," replied Mr. Magill.

COUNCILMAN Adkins said he understood the lots were being offered for sale at prices which would bring a total of $13,700 and that this indicated a profit of 300 per cent. He suggested scaling the prices down to about $300 per lot and added that it would cost the city $6,000 to $7,000 to install the water and sewer lines.

At this point Councilman Boyd L. Horn arose and said: "I am willing to go all the way with the ex-soldiers. The city put in sewers free for homesites in the north end — and some of those lots sold for $1,500."

"We have set no definite price on these lots," Mr. Magill said. "If the city will put in the water and sewer lines the lots might be sold to veterans for as little as $250 to $300. That quoted price of $600 per lot is pure hearsay. The Chamber of Commerce is not looking for any profits but we would like to get this thing going as soon as possible."

At this juncture Councilman William M. Reid arose and declared that at the council meeting on May 20 Mr. Parrett told council the lots were to be sold for $500 to $600 each.

"As councilmen we are custodians of the city's funds," Councilman John W. Eshelman said. "It behooves us to do the most we can with the funds available. This isn't a case of profits. It is a case of whether we have the money for this homesite project and whether this is the proper place to spend the money."

"Present water and sewer projects will take all of the city's money," Councilman George L. Crites said. "We really do not have the money for further projects. Before I would go ahead I would want to know that all of these lots were sold to GIs."

"THIS SUBDIVISION has thus far been neither accepted nor rejected," Councilman Ray Cook declared. "I just heard this evening that some of these lots are tagged at $800. I disapproved (Continued on Page Two)

CITIZENS VOICE PROTESTS AT COUNCIL MEET

Long Session Ends With Plan For Citizens, Council To Consider Problem

Question of restoring Circleville's fire alarm system will be discussed by members of the city council as a committee of the whole in conference with a 10-member committee of citizens representing the more than 1,000 signers of petitions.

This was decided at a lengthy meeting of the council Tuesday night during which two and one-half hours were devoted to the pro-and-con discussion of council's May 20 action in voting to discard the alarm system and in ordering removal of the 24 alarm boxes and the wiring.

MORE THAN 150 spectators jammed the council chamber and overflowed into the city hall's second floor hallway.

While heated discussion raged three petitions carrying the signatures of residents of all sections of the city rested on the desk of Clerk Fred Nicholas. The petitions demanded that the May 20 council action be rescinded and that the alarm boxes be re-installed.

Although it was asserted by Councilman George L. Crites early in the meeting that the cost of an effective alarm system would be $35,000 it was later revealed that the 24 alarm boxes could be "re-built" and put in proper condition at a cost of about $45 per box or a total of approximately $1,000.

Chief among the several spectators who spoke out relative to the alarm system abandonment were Wilson R. "Pete" Clark, Lewis "Tate" McClarren, and James I. Smith, Jr.

After it was decided by unanimous vote of council to continue the discussion at a conference of the council as a whole and the citizens' committee, John C. Goeller, council president, appointed Mr. Clark chairman of the citizens' committee. Goeller named Councilman John W. Eshelman chairman of the council committee but shortly before adjournment and after Eshelman disclosed that he expected to be out of the city for two weeks Goeller appointed Councilman Crites as chairman of the council committee of the whole.

SOON AFTER the round-the-room debate on the fire alarm system abandonment got under way Mr. Smith arose among the spectators. After emphasizing that he was not speaking on behalf of the petitioners Mr. Smith said abandonment of the alarm system was "unfortunate" and he asked council for the reasons for the abandonment.

CONVICTION OF EISLER GUILTY AS TRIAL OPENS

WASHINGTON, June 4—The United States government urged a federal district court jury today to find Communist agent Gerhart Eislser guilty of contempt of the house un-American activities committee.

U. S. Attorney William Hitz opened the case against the alleged Moscow-American Communist liaison man before Federal District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

Hitz told the jury the government would show that Eislser was subpoenaed to testify Feb. 6 before the un-American group, a duly constituted committee of congress.

On that date Hitz said, Eislser appeared before the committee but refused to be sworn or testify unless he were first permitted to read a statement.

Hitz said Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., committee chairman who will be a witness at the trial, told Eislser he could read any statement he wished at the conclusion of his testimony, but could not read it before he was sworn.

River Still Rising, Farmers Face Loss

Hundreds of acres of corn and wheat on farms adjacent to the Scioto river in the Circleville area were inundated Wednesday. At noon the water level was still rising, and the flood damage to crops and livestock was expected to run into many thousands of dollars.

The stage of the Scioto at Circleville measured 19.60 at 8 a. m. Wednesday and it had passed the 20-foot mark by noon. The flood stage is 14 feet. The measurement was 17.59 feet at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday.

U. S. Route 23 near the Pickaway-Franklin county line was closed to traffic Tuesday night but it was reopened shortly after 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Sections of State Routes 56 and 104 were closed by the flood waters, and County Engineer Henry McCrady reported that flood waters covered the Canal road and old Route 22 which is now a part of the county road system.

Back water from the Scioto washed out the ball games at Ted Lewis park, and a "lake" was created by water which backed through sewers along the Norfolk and Western railway on the west side of the park.

Observers said the flood situation in the lowlands along the Scioto near Circleville was the worst since 1945.

CHARLES CARTER, Circleville weather observer, reported that in the 10 hours ended at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday the Scioto rose 3 and 1/2 feet at Circleville. Shortly before noon Wednesday reports from Columbus said the Scioto at that point was slowly receding, in fact it was stated that it dropped from 9.7 feet to an 8-foot level in 24 hours, a decline of 1.7 feet.

Carter predicted that the river near Circleville will reach

I hear that when Warren Austin, with two children, was named "father of the year," Papa Dianne wired, "it used to be tougher."

Austin was picked for his work in the U. N. which is an add ingredient to insert in a popular papa contest.

And give me a small scent and old Doc Gallup to run beside the wagon and-I could find him.

This is not to take anything from Mr. Austin but I hope our next "mother of the year" won't be picked on the basis of her activities in halting opium running.

It's apt to discourage parents who haven't been elected to any convention.

COLORED OLEO LAW FAVORED

Bill May Not Reach Floor; Cigaret Tax For Bonus Dies In Committee

COLUMBUS, O., June 4—The senate-approved bill to permit the sale of colored oleomargarine in Ohio was recommended for passage today by the house committee on organization of state government.

The vote was 10 to 5, with Chairman Kirkpatrick (R-Knox) and Rep. Thompson (R-Lucas) not being recorded.

The bill still faces a fight as it now goes to the house rules committee where one member stated "it will never reach the floor."

THE EXTRA one-cent-a-pack cigaret tax to help finance the proposed soldier bonus, as well as one-third of the proposed 75 million dollar first bonus payment, fell by the legislative wayside today.

The cigaret tax, which with the million-a-month from state revenues would have paid for the 300 million dollar bonus over a 15-year period and made a real estate levy unnecessary, was thrown out by the house-senate conferees working out the bonus differences between the two houses.

The conferees agreed on all (Continued on Page Two)

SENATE GROUP FAVORS BILL TO MERGE SERVICES

WASHINGTON, June 4—The senate armed services committee today recommended passage of President's Truman's Army-Navy unification bill.

Twelve of the 13-member committee voted to report out the bill, but three attached reservations to leave them free to seek floor amendments.

Absent was Sen. Edward V. Robertson (R) Wyo., foe of merger and critic of the milder unification measure.

the system was not "reliable" for the past 10 years, that its discard had been discussed in the council for the last three or four years, that the system was installed 52 years ago and was "completely worn out", and that rather than repair the system "at a cost of $15,000" or to pay "$35,000 for a new system" council decided to discard the alarm boxes. He added that in 1946 "only three calls" were received over the alarm system and two of these were false alarms. He asserted that one fire call cost $1,000.

Asserting that other cities are abandoning their fire alarm systems Councilman Crites declared that the "telephone company is now doing a very good job" and that the "time required to get central now averages only three seconds." He said the telephone system is "far more reliable" than a fire alarm system.

"We need a lot of things more than we need a fire alarm system at $35,000," declared Councilman Crites. "The fire alarm system passed out with the fire horses."

At this juncture Mr. McClarren arose among the spectators and said: "Mr. Crites wants to put us back 40 years, in those days when there was a fire everybody grabbed a bucket and ran."

ANOTHER SPECTATOR arose and after stating he lived on Barnes avenue said: "We have no water, no sewers, no lights, and no fire alarm box."

Councilman William M. Reid retorted that council recently authorized installation of water and sewers on Barnes avenue.

At this point Councilman Boyd L. Horn — the lone councilman who at the May 20 council session voted against abandonment of the fire alarm system — arose and asserted he did not "agree at all with Mr. Crites."

"Circleville residents deserve fire protection," Councilman Horn said. "An auto was afire a few nights ago and the owner had to go to three houses before he located a telephone to call the fire department."

Councilman Horn said the fire hazards at the south side of Circleville are "dangerous" and that Councilman Crites' figure of $35,000 was "not correct."

"I believe we can install a new fire alarm system for $18,000," Councilman Horn said, "and if we save one life the money will be well spent."

A feminine spectator at this point declared: "We don't want the alarm system abandoned."

"I am interested in the south end," declared Councilman Crites. He was interrupted by a male spectator who commented "and you have a telephone, too."

Councilman Crites reiterated that the city does not have "$35,000 to spend for a new alarm system."

At this point Mr. Smith came to the defense of the councilmen who voted to discard the alarm system. Mr. Smith said he did not believe the people understood the circumstances.

"Understanding the situation now," Mr. Smith said, "I believe council's action was wise. I don't think we should continue with a system which is inadequate. A fire alarm system should have more boxes. I am not saying I am against a fire alarm system. I don't want to criticize council. I think they have given this question serious consideration."

Mr. Smith then suggested placing part of the fire equipment and some of the firefighters south of the Norfolk and Western railway right-of-way.

Councilman Robert E. Adkins declared that fire protection should be provided for sections where there are few telephones and he approved a suggestion which had been made for placing telephones outdoors at strategic points for sending fire alarms instead of trying to repair the old alarm system.

Councilman Ray Cook said that Edwin Jury, manager of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone company, told him that telephones are "not available."

He added that a severe storm in the east end of Circleville a year ago disrupted the fire alarm system, that it has been "no good since then," and that this project two weeks ago but if the Chamber of Commerce will sell the lots to GIs at low

non-profit prices I might go along."

"Eighteen ex-soldiers have it 'has turned out to be a corpse,'"

Councilman Cook continued that "if the people want a fire alarm system the matter should be given serious consideration."

He added that "I am willing to put it on the ballot and let the people vote on spending $35,000 for a new fire alarm system," but the idea of "splitting the fire department equipment and manpower and putting part in the south end just will not work."

At this point Mr. Clark arose among the spectators and commented:

"When a storm damages the telephone lines the telephone system is not abandoned." He suggested that the alarm boxes be put back on the poles and that an electrician be employed to examine them and put them in working order.

This proposal was endorsed by Councilman Horn who said an electrician informed him a few days ago that he boxes can be repaired. The councilman also suggested installation of several more boxes.

Under questioning Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the cost of repairing the old alarm system would be about $45 per box.

Chief Wise added that for five or six years I have been trying to get something done but no one was interested." He said also that in recent years the council voted a $500 appropriation annually for upkeep of the alarm system but no funds were there appropriated for 1947.

Mr. McClarren declared that if the city would advertise for repairs to the alarm system the cost of the repairing, in his opinion, would not exceed $5,000.

Councilman Horn asserted that at a repair cost of $45 per box the cost of putting the 24 boxes in shape would amount to only about $1,000. "This would be money well spent for Circleville," Councilman Horn said.

Chief Wise said that new alarm boxes cost $120 each.

"What is $120 for a few more fire alarm boxes," commented Councilman Horn.

COUNCILMAN Eshelman presented a motion that a citizen committee of 10 meet with the council as a committee of the whole for further discussion of the fire alarm question.

"It would upset me if I had no telephone and the fire alarm system were cut out," Councilman Eshelman said.

"There is a lot more to this than can be decided tonight," Councilman Crites said.

"Why can't we hire a local electrician to put this alarm system in shape," Councilman Horn asked.

"What was the big hurry in taking the alarm boxes down?" asked Mr. Clark. "Wouldn't it have been a good idea to test each box before removing it? I believe the council made a mistake."

Clerk Nicholas then called the roll on the motion. The vote was unanimous.

Following the council session Councilman Horn said he desired to express his appreciation to the citizens who attended the meeting.

told me they are prepared to buy one of these lots and to build a home," Councilman Horn asserted. "I believe the council should go along with the Chamber of Commerce."

Mr. Magill then proposed a joint conference of representatives of the city council and the Chamber of Commerce for further discussion of the Chamber's request. On the roll-call the motion was passed by unanimous vote. The date for the conference was not set.

THREE WOMEN spectators led a lively discussion which followed their oral protest of what they termed the use of the street for garage purposes by Winner's garage, 205 South Pickaway street. The women live near that place of business.

The women said that wrecked cars are parked in the street and on the sidewalk, that mechanics hammer all night "seven nights a week" on cars in the street, and one woman invited members of the council to "come there about 2 a. m. and get an earful."

Another woman said she hadn't had a "good night's sleep in months."

City Solicitor George Gerhardt declared the city had no ordinance covering a situation of this kind. Councilman George L. Crites asserted there was "little council can do about this", and he suggested the neighbors go into court and ask for an injunction.

COUNCILMAN Ray Cook sharply rapped the use of the street and sidewalk by Winner's garage and he declared "this man is encroaching on the rights" of nearby residents. He added that there should be "more arrests, offender arrests, and a jail sentence if necessary," and asserted that the street "should not be used for the storage of wrecked cars or for an auto sales lot."

Backing the plea of the women for action by the city Councilman Horn declared: "This is up to the police and the mayor."

At this point Mayor Ben H. Gordon asserted the city has no ordinance under which an arrest could be properly made. Solicitor Gerhardt reiterated that in his opinion it was "up to the property owners to take legal action."

Councilman Cook then offered a motion to instruct the city solicitor to prepare an ordinance against noise, nuisance, and improper parking in South Pickaway street. The vote on the motion was unanimous.

BY UNANIMOUS vote the council passed an emergency ordinance appropriating $50 to pay for painting a marker on a building for the guidance of airplane pilots in accordance with a new state law.

Ordinances granting a wage bonus to street workers in the city service department and fixing fees for tapping a water main were given their second readings.

An ordinance appropriating $300 to finance installation of "blinker" traffic lights at dangerous intersections was given its first reading. After Councilmen Horn and Ray Anderson had opposed the legislation a motion to pass the ordinance under suspension of the rules was defeated by a vote of 4 to 3.

An ordinance appropriating played by the high school orchestra and sung by the entire audience. The Rev. Mr. Sherburne gave the invocation.

Superintendent Frank Fischer called attention to the gloomy world news of today and the problems faced by the graduating class. He said that despite the fact the war is over each commencement seems gloomier than the last. He declared the older people are to blame for the present situation which the graduates are facing but "the class is ready, willing and eager to face it."

"Dare to be Different" was the title of the address of Shirley F. Blake, salutatorian. E. Rodman Heine, valedictorian, used as his topic "The Importance of Tradition." "Dedication", an original poem, was presented by Anne Adkins Renick.

"May-Day Carol," by Deems Taylor, was sung by the girls' sextet. An ensemble from the orchestra played "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore."

PRINCIPAL J. Wray Henry presented awards to honor graduates. Scholarships were won by Heine and Miss Blake.

Kiwanis keys, presented annually to an outstanding boy and girl graduate, were won by Robert McCoy and Miss Blake. The award is based on scholarship and leadership in other activities. Mr. Henry said McCoy was a member of EMS, Stodge Club, Hi-Y, scholarship team two years, class officer two years, business manager of annual staff, in the junior class play, member of the football, basketball and track squads.

Miss Blake played in the band and orchestra four of EMS, two years class officer, member of Girl Reserves, Senior Y-Teen, glee club, sextet, in the junior class play and editor of the annual.

Diplomas were presented by C. R. Barnhart, president of the board of education to 63 seniors present. Two were absent. Miss F. Elisabeth Stevenson is ill at her home and James Wells was working out of town.

John Milton Stout, who recently returned home from military service in the Pacific, was awarded a diploma, although he did not attend classes this year. He needed only one credit when he went unto service and completed the requirements while in the service. Other members of the class with military experience, who came back to finish their school work, were Leon Sims, Glenn Pearce and Wells.

TRUMAN URGES WAR TRAINING

the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, made an "exhaustive investigation" over a period of six months "and has submitted an excellent report."

THE PRESIDENT said: "It is significant to note that the members of the commission consisting of outstanding Americans in various fields of endeavor, unanimously recommended the adoption of universal training."

The commission recommended unanimously that all male youths be required to take military training either upon reaching the age of 18 years, or upon completion of their high school education prior to reaching the age of 20.

Booster club meeting and election of officers will be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the shelter house at Ted Lewis park.

RIVER IS STILL RISING HERE

Wednesday in some areas in central Ohio but further southward rivers and streams were rising and overflowing farm lands.

TWO DAYS of sunshine and rising temperatures today were helping to dry out fields, but forecasters said the good will be quickly undone by anything from a quarter to a half-inch of rain tomorrow.

Also, due to the soggy conditions of the countryside, it would take only an inch of rain to bring streams back to the flooding stages, the weatherman said.

Farmers reported that some crops already planted in the lowlands along rivers had been washed out by rain-swollen streams while others tried to reschedule plantings, delayed for weeks by almost constant rains.

EARL JONES, Ohio State University extension agronomist, said that only 35 per cent of the three and a half million acres in the state normally devoted to corn was believed to have been ploughed. However, he recommended that farmers in central Ohio still should plan on planting corn if they can get it into the ground by June 25.

If the corn can't be planted by June 25, Jones said that soybeans can be sowed up to July 1 and buckwheat and sudan grass up to July 15.

The university expert also advised farmers to plant as fast as they can plough when they get the chance and to pool resources in each neighborhood to get the greatest possible acreage planted in a short time.

An extended period of dry weather was the only hope for many crops, but the weatherman saw nothing in the present picture to indicate it.

A low pressure area out of the Dakotas was reported moving south and east and was expected to reach Ohio by tomorrow morning.

Know Your City Water Department

By ERVIN LEIST
Utilities Manager

What are the water rates in Circleville?

The following rates are those established by city ordinance: All users of water metered or measured service shall pay the following rates: for the first 400 cubic feet per quarter $0.45 per 100 cu. ft.; for the next 30,000 cu. ft. per quarter $0.30 per 100 cu. ft.; for the next 42,000 cu. ft. per quarter $0.15 per 100 cu. ft.; for all over 72,400 cu. ft. per quarter $0.075 per 100 cu. ft.

Minimum charge: the minimum charge in any one quarter for 400 cu. ft. of water or fraction thereof shall be \$1.80 per quarter. This charge shall be increased proportionately for meters larger than  $\frac{3}{4}$  x  $\frac{3}{4}$  inch.

Discount: the foregoing water service charges are net and bills computed on this schedule if not paid within 10 days (1st thru 10th of the month) are subject to an additional charge of 5 per cent. In no case, however, shall the charge be less than 10 cents.

How do you figure a water bill? Let us take a sample problem: present meter reading 116400 cubic feet, previous meter reading 113700 cubic feet, difference 2700 cubic feet. 2700 divided by 100 equals 27-100's cu. ft. Minimum charge $1.80 for the first 4-100's cu. ft. 27 less 4 equals 23; 23 times $0.30 equals $6.90 and get $3.70 the amount of the bill. Note: the last two places in the meter reading are ciphers. Bills are rendered only for full 100's cu. ft. Fractions are taken into consideration only on "Final Bills".

Has there been a change in water rates? No, the rate schedule remains unchanged, and can not be raised or lowered without the permission of the Trustee for the bond holders of the mortgage revenue bonds, issued to purchase the water plant and system.

What is meant by water guarantee? The owner of a property will be given water "turn-on" service upon his signature to the application form supplied by the water department. A tenant will be given water "turn-on" service upon his signature and that of the property owner to the application form. A tenant may elect to make a deposit of $5.00 for water service, prior to setting the meter, or turn-on of water to serve the premises, in lieu of obtaining the signature of the property owner. The deposit shall be returned to the depositor upon termination of service.

Non-payment of a water bill constitutes a lien against a property (Ohio General Code) and as such may be certified to the county auditor and added to the real estate taxes for payment.

BLUE RIBBON 9 WINS FAST GAME BY LATE RALLY

Esmeralda Nosed Out In 56-Minute Night League Contest

Night Softball league fans were treated to a fast, close game Tuesday night at Ted Lewis park.

Blue Ribbon scored a run in the last of seventh to win 6-5 over Esmeralda in a game that took only 56 minutes to play, the fastest of the season.

With the bases loaded in the seventh Lee Siegwald blasted a long hit that scored the winning run.

ESMERALDA took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Blue Ribbon knotted the count in the third. In the fifth Esmeralda scored three runs to go ahead 5-2 but the Dairymen came right back in their half of the frame to again tie the score.

There will be no ball games Wednesday or Thursday and possibly Friday nights. Water backed up from the Scioto river through sewers has created a "lake" along the railroad tracks and threatens to cover the entire ball diamond.

VET DRIVERS KEEP LEAD IN HARNESS RACE

CHICAGO, June 4—Veteran drivers still were tops today in the harness racing program at Maywood park.

Latest winner was 47-year-old Edgar Leonard, Lincoln, Ill., who guided Edith Cash, 6-year-old pacers to a half length victory last night in the mile feature race.

It was the second night of the grand circuit meeting.

The victory enabled Leonard to maintain third place in the championship.

He trails 69-year-old C. F. Runley Sr., Princeton, Ill., and 58-year-old Archie Niles, Northville, Mich.

Edith Cash paced the mile in 2:20 and returned $3.60. It was the horse's second straight victory in the Maywood park meet.

JOE DIMAGGIO COPS AMERICAN BATTING LEAD

Reds And Indians Handed Defeats; Giants In National Lead

NEW YORK, June 4 — Joseph Paul DiMaggio, the party they said was through, was the toast of baseball's acclaiming mob today—a man who had crowded one of the great comebacks of all time into two dramatic weeks.

In that time, DiMag sparked a drive which carried the Yanks from a mediocre fourth place status to an active, challenging position, two games behind the pace-making Tigers. And that deficit may easily be rolled away today. The Yanks tangle with the Tigers in a double-header at Detroit this afternoon.

Two weeks ago, a languishing Joe DiMaggio apparently was "through", a caricature of the vaunted Yankee clipper. He was hitting less than .270, and was smarting under a $100 fine for alleged failure to "cooperate" with the management.

Yesterday, Joltin' Joe reach the climax of a long, heartbreaking comeback fight to reach the peak of his former excellence. He belted Hal Newhouser for four straight hits to zoom his batting average to a league-leading .368. A glance at recent records reveals some phenomenal statistics. Since May 18, Joe has hit safely in 16 consecutive games; he has eight hits in the last ten tries, and 33 safeties in 67 at-bats.

In addition to the Tiger defeat, the Indians and the Red Sox lost. The Browns bagged only five hits in beating the champion Red Sox and Tex Hughson, 4 to 3.

The Indians lost their game in the ninth, when Gerry Priddy belted a homer to insure a 6-to-5 victory for the Washington Senators.

In the other game in the junior loop, the Chicago White Sox topped the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 0, behind the three-hit pitching of Frank Papias.

The National League race gave little indication of clearing up. The Giants defeated the Cubs, 8 to 3, on homers by Willard Marshall, Walker Cooper and Sid Gordon, to take over undisputed lead of first place.

Brooklyn took two games from the Pirates in a slugging double-header, 11 to 6 and 8 to 7. Rex Barney started the first game and relieved in the second to get credit for both Dodger victories.

The St. Louis Cardinals, displaying the form which brought them the 1946 flag, handed Boston Brave ace Warren Spahn his first defeat in nine starts. Stan Musial banged out his fifth homer of the year in the fifth inning to feature the 3-to-0 victory pitched by George Mungler.

St. Louis didn't climb out of the National League cellar because the surprising Philadelphia Phillies downed the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 1. Schoolboy Rowe won his seventh game against a single defeat. The only run the Reds scored was a seventh-inning home run by Eddie Miller, his 12th of the season.

OHIOAN KOs MILLS

LONDON, June 4 — Freddie Mills, last of Britain's world championship prospects in the heavier classes, was eliminated today as a contender by a fifth round knockout at the hands of Lloyd Marshall of Cleveland, O.

BLUES RETAIN AA LEAD WITH WIN OVER BIRDS

By International News Service

The Blues maintained their lead last night by downing the Columbus Red Birds, 5 to 4, behind Frank Hiller. The New York Yankee farmhand was nicked for seven hits, but kept them well scattered to ring up his fifth victory of the season while the rest of the league still has to tag him with a loss.

Meanwhile, the Colonels, moving along slightly better than their parent Boston Red Sox, clipped St. Paul for a 4-to-2 win as they said "howdy-do-dee" once again to the Mud Hens and slipped into the runner-up position.

A split with Milwaukee put the Mud Hens in third place, three games behind the leading Blues.

Frank Snyder's crew dropped the second game with the Brewers, 9 to 3, after taking the opener 4 to 3. Both teams knocked the ball all over the lot last night with the Mud Hens picking up 5 hits in the first game and 13 in the second. Milwaukee racked up eight safeties in the opener and an additional 15 in the closing tilt.

NEW FEATURES INCLUDED IN 1947 CIRCLE

CHS Yearbook Records Work And Play Of Students Of Community

Residents who are interested in what goes on at Circleville high school now have an opportunity to get first hand information. This data is authentic; it was collected at the scene of activity; there are numerous pictures to heighten the effects; it is written by the students about themselves and the school Circleville supports.

The 1947 edition of the Circle, year book written and compiled by the senior class of Circleville high school, has been delivered by the publishers in time to share the spotlight of commendement week activities.

Alumni, who recall their own work on the Circle in past years, eagerly anticipate each new edition. This year's will present a new appearance. A mottled hard back with a raised tiger head in red and black is an innovation which puts Circleville's annual in the class with those usually issued by larger schools.

A LARGE photograph of the student body and faculty grouped on the school lawn and front walk is spread over the first two pages. Snapshots of students emphasize the most important stock-in-trade of the school—the youngsters. Their activities, sports, clubs, musical groups, library and office staffs, Circle and Tiger Tales staffs, are likewise recorded in pictures and stories.

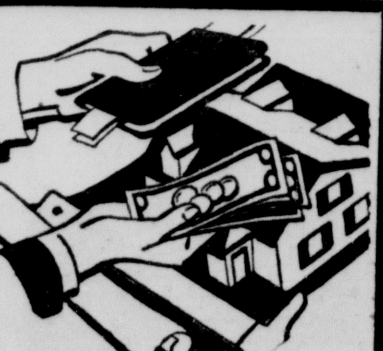

Senior class pictures are individual as usual. For the first time in several years underclassmen also have individual pictures, grouped by classes. Other individual photos are of members of the board of education and faculty.

Dedicated to J. Wray Henry, principal of CHS the Circle pays tribute in these words: "With gratitude for the help and guidance he has given us throughout our four years of high school, we, the class of 1947, dedicate this book to Mr. J. Wray Henry".

PUBLICATION of a year book can be accomplished only by hard work, cooperation, ingenuity and efficiency. Months of careful planning, consultation with engravers, photographers and businessmen, writing and revising, precede each edition. Miss Margaret Mattinson, Circle advisor, deserves praise for the splendid work she has done in guiding and advising the staff in preparation of the annual. Members of her able staff are Shirley Blake, editor-in-chief; Thomas Pettit, business manager; Lee Fischer, Rodman Heine, Joan Webb, Edna Maynard, June Lanman, Joanne Hawkes, Robert McCoy, Jo Ann Rader, Jack Pettit, Robert Turner, Virginia McCain, Anne Renick, Rosalie Bartholomew, associates. Mr. Henry is business advisor and C. F. Zaenglein took all group photographs.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT

Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress

Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

AGRICULTURAL HEALTH

FARM LAND values, that have increased 92 per cent in the last few years, are to be studied at a Washington conference set for the second week of June. It is to be attended by farm leaders, bankers and government officials. It has the backing of the President. Land values went up principally in the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard states, along the Gulf, in Michigan, and in tobacco growing areas of the south. This was due to population shifts to these districts. After World War I was the corn and wheat growing belts that witnessed the greatest land price rise.

Though the rise in agricultural land values has been troubling many economists, there are evidences that it is already halted. It has reflected the tremendous increase in farm cash income which has risen from eight billion dollars in 1939 to 24 billion in 1946. While there is a prospect of farm income turning downward, it is the object of such conferences as the one mentioned above to avoid too drastic a drop in agricultural prosperity. This is another way of saying the basic economic well-being of this country depends on its farm health. It is sometimes difficult for urban dwellers to realize that the real foundation of the United States is farming.

FEWER FRILLS FOR CARS

SUGGESTIONS are being made that expensive body trimming and numerous gadgets affixed to automobiles be reduced. Shiny new cars, resplendent with bright decoration, are mighty pleasing. Cigar lighters, radios, trick wins held wipers are all very nice. But they cost money.

There is room for two styles of cars, one following the elaborate designs now in vogue for those with the cash for them, the other, plainer, whose purpose is transportation minus frills. Many people can remember the unadorned Fords of long ago, which were stripped of all extraneous decoration, priced within the range of the common man.

There is a definite trend now toward simplicity. The high cost of living has made realistic folks think twice of what is necessary and what they can do without. Engineers and designers for automobiles would do well to give heed to it, to turn their attention to more simplification of models, or at least of some models. These, produced in great enough quantity and at reasonable prices, would guarantee profits to their makers for years to come. Americans are hungry for them.

People can drop off the front page and still be necessary to reckon with. For example, Marshal Tito.

For all the difficulty of our problems, is there any other large country with which we would swap places

ASSIGNMENT: AMERICA

By Kenneth L. Dixon
Distributed by International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 4 — Somewhere in that haven where our fallen heroes gather, there's a little gnome-like guy lounging in the sun today, chuckling softly to himself as he reads the book reviews from down here below.

And this is the story behind that last laugh from Valhalla.

It's an easy laugh, without bitterness, for Ernie Pyle was not a guy to nurse a grudge. But he was mighty humane, and it must be pleasant to see that at last they realize what he gently tried to tell them for so long.

They've just published a new book entitled "Home Country", which isn't news at all—being a collection of Ernie's peacetime columns written from 1935 to 1940—if you read Pyle regularly before his name became a wartime national byword.

But the critics have gone wild about it. They say—but let's start this story at the beginning.

During the war, Ernie's pyramiding fame hit him about like a pair of size fourteen shoes. He found it uncomfortable, unwieldy and difficult to get around in.

But more than anything else, he found it surprising and confusing. He felt he was doing approximately the same job he had been doing for the past decade. And he sincerely thought that his copy was no better, and often worse, than it had been during his peacetime wandering.

But the experts thought differently — mostly because they never bothered to read his prewar stuff. And that's what hurt Ernie.

It was considered "smart" in those days, even among some newsmen, to say, "Look how the war has improved Ernie Pyle's copy. Why, I never could stand him until he went overseas!"

Or else "the war has really made a writer out of Pyle."

Often in Italy, they would say it to his face. Ernie knew they meant it as a compliment. So he'd smile and thank them quietly, unless he knew them well. But now and then he would sound off afterwards.

Once, outside Cassino, after a former newspaperman (then a lieutenant-colonel) made such a well-meaning remark, Ernie turned to the rest of us in the tent and said irritably:

"Those guys make me sick. What he really means is that he never read anything I wrote before, so naturally it couldn't have been any good! Actually, most of this stuff I'm writing now is worse than what I used to write—because at least I was eating and sleeping decently in those days, and that means a lot to an old man."

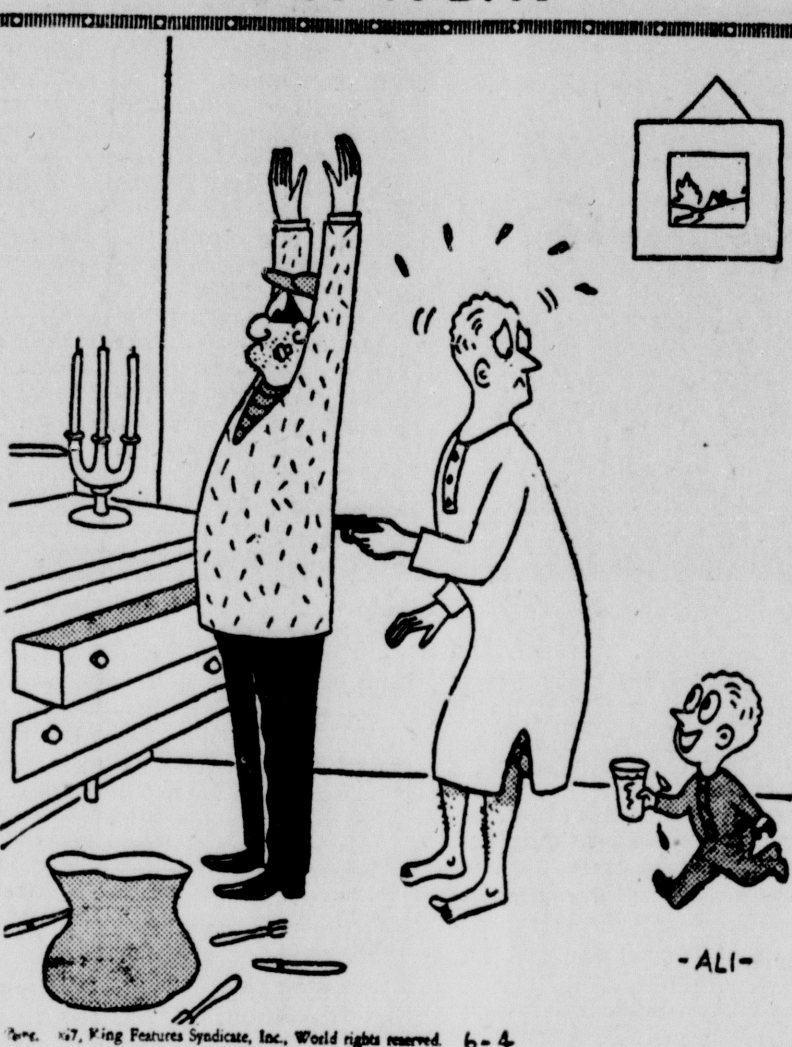

We all grinned, and somebody shoved the needle into the fame-fidgety little man with: "why, Ernie! now you know your typewriter is touched with genius and only produces imperishable prose. Why everybody reads Ernie Pyle nowadays!"

"Sure," said Ernie, cooling off a little, "and they read you fugitives from the city room, too, like they never did before. But that's only because the war is the most important thing you ever wrote about. It doesn't mean you're any better than you were before."

Have you noticed how many reasons are advanced why prices cannot be reduced?

LOOKING FORWARD PAYS

One of the main differences between the fine declarer and most pretty good players is in the ability to look forward and note the likely succession of events. In some cases this is practically the same thing as mentally playing all the tricks according to one plan and perhaps seeing that it threatens to develop an unsolvable problem later. In this event, the declarer should search for an alternative that seems to eliminate that defect. If he figures out such a plan, he deserves whatever reward he gains thereby.

his Q and A leading a third heart to East. The latter returned his spade Q, and all at once South saw he was blocked by the club tops in his own hand. He therefore had to lose two tricks in spades at the end.

The other declarer profited from East's bad return of a club. He took it in his own hand, laid down his other top, then led to the Q, knowing someone would ruff this trick. He had reckoned that the probable trump division would be three with one defender and two with the other, and that the one with the larger number of hearts would be likely to have the smaller number of clubs. That is what developed. East trumped the third club with his heart 10, then returned his spade Q—too late. South won with dummy's A, finessed the heart Q, laid down the heart A to clear the suit, then used the heart 2 to the 8 as a re-entry to run the clubs and discard his spades, thus making an extra trick.

CHAPTER THIRTY

DIANE WENT to the bedroom as soon as they got home and began to undress. Bill followed her.

"New dress, isn't it?"
"Yes, do you like it?"
"I'm not sure. It's different from what you usually wear, isn't it? Or else it's combining it with the way you have your hair." He came to her, his eyes caressing. "I like the old way best, darling." He put his hands on her hair.

"Don't," she cried sharply, drawing away from him. Then she got control of herself. "I paid Antoine three dollars for this set! I can't have it mussed!"

Bill did not sense that her recoil was not from that. He kissed the curve of her throat, turned to the bureau. "You never used to care! That was one of the things I liked about you, that you weren't thinking all the time about how you looked." Then he was distracted from that. "Three dollars? Whew! Isn't that pretty deep?"

Diane drew a breath, that her voice might be steady. "Oh, it's a racket, I suppose!"

Bill began taking off his tie, his shirt, talking, as he did so, about the racket it was. A French name and, at that, Antoine's real name probably was John, a sleek manner and a lot of mirrors and chromium—Here Bill broke off with a wide yawn.

And Diane, slipping into thin silk pajamas, took a quick satisfaction of herself because she had skimmed through what easily could have been another small crisis between them. "Yes, I intend to be different from now on," she might have said to Bill. Not hard, not unloving, but keeping a part of herself to herself, as Bill did, to which to withdraw, just as, in a house that held a great many people, you'd go to your own room sometimes, and shut its door, to save your equanimity.

Of this purpose she gave no sign to Bill. She was gay spirited when she was with him and when presently he smiled fondly on her and she knew he was approving what he believed was her effort to take a new mental attitude toward having the boy, she felt no resentment. Naturally he couldn't see through a closed door!

They went to the Meadows for dinner, to the Matthews'. All thea Mathewson pressed Diane's hands, whispered: "Bill's mother has told me! I think it's wonderful!" They had the Meadows in again, for bridge, and on another evening they had the Matthews for dinner.

"Haven't you other friends you want to invite in, Bill?" Diane asked that night, when their guests went away. As if she had only met Bill and so could not know his intimates, though she did not realize that absurdity.

"Oh, there's Dick Storey and his wife. Didn't she call and leave cards when we first got back from Bermuda? It'd be nice to have them in some night, though I haven't seen Dick for some time. He goes out of town a good deal and I've been too busy. Same thing with Chester Bigelow. Chet and I used to get together often. There's no question but that work and wife come between a man and his former friends."

"You never suggest that we ask Rufus Kent to come here." She realized instantly that she had made that omission sound significant. Bill might remember what she'd said of Rufus as her lover in the movie.

But Bill did not remember it. "That's a fact, we haven't had him here but that one evening. Well, when this Thorpe case is over we'll go social, in a big way. Di, do you know you're a very charming hostess? All thea said that to me tonight."

He was a little anxious in his tenderness, his appreciation. "I'll do everything to help you through!" Lois came back from her cruise, called Diane at once. And Diane, in her Algerian blue, met her for luncheon at Giuseppe's. Lois waited, on seeing her: "I was going to spring that color on this town! And the hairdresser on the boat showed me how to fix my hair that way, only I have to wait 'til mine grows longer! You always are a jump ahead, Di."

Lois had little triumphs of her own to relate. A man on the boat, the smoothest man, and every girl breaking her neck to make him, had been simply devoted to her!

Wilma and Vicki returned and, with Lois, Diane met them for luncheon. They told of their house parties, talked a great deal about the new hunt club which promised a gay winter. "You're coming into it, aren't you, Di?"

"No, I'm going to have a baby," Diane said calmly.

"Di! What foul luck!" cried Lois, adding: "I mean, because you'll be out of everything!"

Diane smiled. "Yes, I will." And was proud that she could feel indifferent to their sympathy.

One day she met Rufus again on the street, not far from the Post building. He was hurrying along, but he stopped, drew her out of the stream of pedestrians. "Seems to me you are looking very ultra, Mrs. Arden!"

"New clothes! My hat is very, very chic, in case you don't know." She thought his face had tired lines. She asked, quickly: "When is Page coming home?"

"Next week."
"And then—"
"Yes, then—"
"Good luck!"
"How's Bill?"

"He's very busy just now with some patent suit."
"And you?"
She returned his direct glance. "Going strong."

She realized that her hand was still in his. Thinking: "We mustn't look absorbed," she drew it away,

For Wednesday, June 4.

A SUDDEN and unforeseen turn of events may have force to upset or disturb well-laid plans and projects seemingly soundly established on an enduring basis. This may concern the use of funds or other financial readjustments or lack of support. Shun emotional reactions or impulsive moves, since new ideas, ingenuity or innovation may prove lucrative and sound. Keep reasonable and understanding in all contacts or ventures.

For The Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by some definite change, with plans and projects in the balance because of want of proper support, or the withdrawal of credit or finances already counted upon. Be calm and civil in sudden reversals or strange twists of events, as the bright idea, special skill or stroke of genius might have power to restore affairs to promising and long-term benefit. Suppress emotional reactions and impetuosity for happy results in business ventures and romance as well.

A child born on this day may have emotional and impulsive urges to mend matters by erratic behavior, when sound reason and a novel approach would prove more beneficial.

He holds banquets in them and he clinches business deals in them, and if the laws of nature were different, he would give birth in them. As it is, his wife does.

The Astor, I guess, is the one with the most character. It is strictly Broadway, and the characters who prowl it are always dark-shirted, big-nosed and carrying copies of the Racing Form. Margie Hart used to live in the Astor, and Jimmy Durante has a suite permanently reserved for him. I remember interviewing Durante in the Astor one afternoon, and you never have seen a happier man than The Nose, as he flung open the window and looked and listened to the sights and sounds of Broadway and Times Square below. Noisy, crowded, glittering—once seen, never forgotten, the Astor.

MY OWN FAVORITE is Hampshire House, up on Central park south. I like it even though it is very lifted-pinky. Dorothy Draper did the decor, full of stripes and flowers and studied elegance, and made it the kind of place where even low and vulgar ones like myself can relax and pretend we are gentlemen.

On the other hand, my second favorite is the Mills, down on Bleeker st. in the Village. There are several Mills; this is the one known as "Mills Hotel No. 1," and it is full of strange, seedy, ships that pass in the night.

I saw a very fine fistfight in front of it the other evening, two guys belting the ears off each other—and ending up with their arms around each other, headed for a nearby gin mill. The Mills, too, has character.

The Waldorf-Astoria—the new one, son—is some 15 years old, but still doesn't seem to have made up its mind whether to be social or commercial. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor always stay there when in town, and there are other celebrities by the carload, all the way from Bing Crosby up or down to Frank Sinatra.

However, there are other, more raffish characters, whose only claim to fame seems to be a big bankroll. I aim to take this up with the Waldorf's management, to see what can be done about steering the joint's course one way or another.

THE BEST MEN'S BAR is in the Biltmore, a quiet, warm place that is haven from gabbling females. The best swimming pool is the salt water one in the St. George, over in Brooklyn Heights. The nicest dining room is the Gotham's, a hotel of infinite charm which, alas, is more noted as the place where a suicidal guest with a flair for drama jumped to his death through the marquee.

The biggest Tom Collines are served at the St. Regis' King Cole Bar. The nicest dining-dancing spot is the Persian Room of the Plaza. The most austere is the Cotillion Room at the Pierre. The most movie stars stop at the Sherry-Netherland.

The best room service is in the Ambassador. The most pleasantly old-fashioned is the Vanderbilt. The most unusual is the Holley, in MacDougal st. in the Village, underneath which flows the turbulent waters of Minetta brook.

However, these are, mostly, the big inns. There are thousands of small ones, like the Little Hotel in 51st st. hard by Tools Shor's, where the clientele never changes and the manager is father confessor to them all.

I once ghost-wrote a book for a gal who lived there, and I must admit I spent more of my time listening to the manager advise his guests on who to date, marry or repel than I did working. They were pretty nice people, all in all.

Youth Fellowship Has Mother-Father Banquet

Morris EUB Church Groups Honors Parents

Twenty-four members and guests attended the Mother-Father banquet Tuesday evening, given by members of the Youth Fellowship society of the Morris Evangelical United Brethren church in the Wardell party home, Williamsport pike. Places were marked with colorful favors. Vases of yellow roses and lighted candles centered the three tables in the dining room where the guests were seated for the dinner. Each mother and father was presented a corsage of Sweet Peas.

"Greetings to Mother" was given by Miss Mary Ann Drake; response, Mrs. Harry Arledge, "Greetings to Father", Eugene Kerns, response, Harry Arledge. A reading by Ray Strawser concluded the dinner hour. Devotionals were presented by the Rev. Carl Butterbaugh; trumpet solo, Eugene Kerns; piano solo, Donna Jean Kerns, reading, Miss Helen Pontius.

Albert H. Crombie, president of Youth Problems, Incorporated, Columbus, was introduced as speaker of the evening. He selected for his interesting talk, "The Joys and Problems of Family Living". He told the group that many of the young people consult him each day concerning their problems and he tries to assist them in making the correct decision. He emphasized in closing that it should be impressed in the minds of our youth today that "God is Everywhere". The Lord's prayer closed the program hour.

REBECCA ROESE BECOMES BRIDE OF GENE TOSCA

On Sunday, June 1, at three-thirty o'clock in the Lutheran church at Ashville, Miss Rebecca Roese, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roese, South Bloomfield, became the bride of Gene Lee Tosca, son of Mr. and Mrs. Quantian Tosca, Ashville. The Rev. H. D. Fudge officiated at the wedding rites before an altar decorated in a beautiful display of glads, ferns and burning-tapers.

The bride was accompanied down the white satin aisle by her brother, Edward Roese, who gave her in marriage. Her bridal gown was of heavy white slipper satin, made with a lace yoke embroidered with seed pearls, long tight sleeves and a close fitting bodice, with a full skirt sweeping into a long train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was fastened to a crown of seedpearls. She carried white carnations and gardenias tied with a bow of marquisette.

Miss Pauline Roese, sister of the bride, was maid of honor in a peach net formal frock trimmed with taffeta bows over the net. A soft crushed net open crowned hat with a short veil completed her ensemble. She carried Talisman roses and blue larkspur.

Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Lou Thomas and Miss Monna Lee Graham. Miss Thomas wore a yellow net and carried pink carnations and pink larkspur. Miss Graham was in blue taffeta and carried blue iris and blue larkspur. Both had worn identical headdresses of crushed fabric and fingertip veils. Little Jimmie Hoover in a white suit, carried the ring in a lily. His little sister, Penny Sue Hoover, in a dainty pink dotted swiss dress, was flower girl and carried a basket of yellow daisies. Harold Tosca attended his twin brother as best man and Dale Schiff and Jerry Trego were ushers.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Rolland Featheringham, Ashville, presented a period of pre-nuptial music on the church organ, and Connie Johnson, Ashville, sang, "Oh Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly". At the conclusion of the services Mr. Johnson sang the "Lord's Prayer".

Mrs. Tosca selected for her son's wedding a green crepe dress with black accessories. Her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. Karl Graham, the bride's sister, wore a navy blue frock, white hat and white accessories. A corsage of gardenias and pink carnations was pinned at her shoulder.

A reception immediately followed the ceremony in the Roese home in South Bloomfield for members of the families and a few close friends.

Bride is a graduate of Ashville high school and has been employed in the Graybar Electric company, Columbus. Mr. Tosca also a graduate of the Ashville school, now is attending the Franklin Business College, Columbus. The new Mr. and Mrs. Tosca will make their home in the Roese home in South Bloomfield.

PEGGY WEBER, CLARENCE RUSH ARE MARRIED

The Rev. H. D. Fudge officiated for the wedding of Miss Peggy Weber and Clarence Donald Rush in the Ashville Evangelical Lutheran church on Memorial day at 3:30 p. m. before an altar decorated in ferns and vari-colored gladioli. Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Weber, Ashville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rush, Ashville.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose for her wedding a white gaberdine dressmaker suit with green accessories. She carried a Bible topped with an orchid. Miss Phyllis Rohr, Black Lick attended her cousin as bridesmaid. Paul Painter, Groveport, another cousin of the bride was best man. Seating the guests were Richard Kuhlwein and Maurice Murray, Ashville.

Mrs. Rolland Featheringham presented a period of selected wedding music on the church organ preceding the wedding. Immediately following the nuptial vows a reception was held in the church for a few close relatives and friends. Mrs. Weber selected for her daughter's wedding a dusty pink crepe frock with matching jacket and used white accessories. Mrs. Rush, the bridegroom's mother, wore a light blue dress accented with white accessories.

THE LOWLY SPUD—SAVIOR OF EUROPE

"Irish" Potato Today Greatest Weapon Against Famine

By RALPH L. GUYETTE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The lowly potato has probably done more to save the starving people of Europe than any other single food. Yet at one time in England an association called the "Society for the Prevention of Unwholesome Diet" was formed to abolish its use. It was from the name of this organization that the potato got its famous nickname—S-P-U-D, spud.

In those early days the grubby potato was thought to carry seeds of leprosy and plague, and for centuries it went virtually unused.

Today, "Pass the spuds" has become about as common an expression in America as, "How are you?" In fact, 14 per cent of the American diet is provided by the spud. In Europe, of course, this percentage is much higher.

Throughout the countries of Poland, France, Germany and Russia the potato has almost reached the importance of rice in the yellow man's diet.

The spud might even be called, without stretching the truth too far, the savior of the Caucasian world. For it has for centuries been the white man's buffer against the ravages of famine.

Through war years and draught years, through depressions and recessions the potato has been the one life-giving substance to remain on the barren tables of the poor.

Despite its hardness and cheapness of price it is an extremely nourishing food, providing energy out of all proportion to its monetary value. And since the human body needs food but for two purposes, to repair body tissues and to provide energy, the importance of the potato in the diet of our poorer classes can easily be seen.

IRELAND SEEMS to have been the first country to recognize this fact. For the land of the Blarney Stone and the Shamrock nurtured and cultivated the potato until it became the favorite food.

Like all eggs in one basket, however, this one-crop existence nearly led to the country's destruction. For, in 1846 and 1847 a blight descended on the potato fields, destroying the crops and nearly the Irish nation. It was at this time that so many Irish immigrants took ship for America.

Since that time many Americans have so associated the potato with Ireland that it is popularly believed to have originated in that country. This, of course, is a fallacy.

Actually, the potato crossed the Atlantic four times before reaching Ireland. The white potato, as we know it, was developed in this country after much experimentation and a species was then transplanted to Ireland where its cultivation became general.

Long before this time, however, back in the days when the Spanish Don was conquering Peru, the great conquistador, Francisco Pizarro, found that the ancient Incas had already been cultivating the "batata," or potato, for hundreds of years.

SPRAYING—Mrs. Millie Kepner keeps the insect pests in check on her Pennsylvania farm.

HARVEST—Potato digger scoops up 400 bushels to the acre.

Many wonderful tales have been told of the highly cultured Incas—among them the story of their remarkable development and cultivation of fruits and vegetables. In this field they were far more advanced than "civilized" Europe.

THE INCAS, amid their New World, savage culture, originated and successfully developed the potato until it flourished in more than a hundred different varieties, some of which were used to manufacture dyes.

By using the red sweet potato with lime juice in various proportions, the Peruvians produced marvelous permanent dyes that cannot today be manufactured even by our modern chemists.

After the Spaniards had conquered the Incas, they carried back to Spain the "batata"—undoubtedly to them, just an afterthought. But an item that was in later years to prove far more valuable than all the gold and silver bullion found in the Aztec and Peruvian empires.

From Spain the potato passed through Italy, to Belgium, and then to England. The poor clasped it to their hearts because it grew freely and in abundance.

However, it was all of two centuries before it came into general cultivation. Continuous development from then to now has given the world approximately 200 different varieties. These have been used for everything from food to fuel.

In the United States in 1946 our farmers produced a bumper crop of 478 million bushels. This is about 90 or 100 million bushels more than we need for normal consumption; so much of the surplus is being diverted to other uses.

A million bushels are going into our School Lunch programs to build up the bodies of our youngsters. Many more bushels are being diverted to starch mills and livestock pens.

Distillers have also taken 20 million bushels for distillation of alcohol, and an additional six million bushels for the making of industrial alcohol for ultimate use in the manufacture of synthetic rubber, antifreeze and other products. Then, too, much of our surplus stock has gone to feed hungry Europe.

So you see, the unobtrusive and grubby potato is not what it seems. Actually, it is an extremely important cog in the wheel of white civilization. The French call it "pomme-de-terre" or "apple of the earth," and rightly so. For the potato is truly the apple of the Occidental eye.

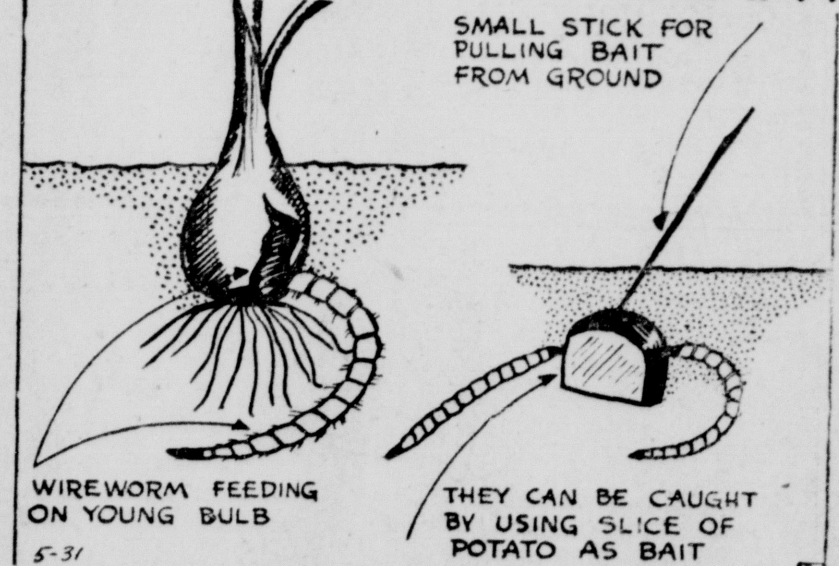

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

WORDS OF THE WISE

We ought to be thankful to nature for having made those things which are necessary easy to be discovered; while other things that are difficult to be known are not necessary. —(Epicurus)

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

WIREWORM FEEDING ON YOUNG BULB

THEY CAN BE CAUGHT BY USING SLICE OF POTATO AS BAIT

Beware the Wary Wireworm

IF YOU cherish home-grown sweet corn, watch out for wireworms in your vegetable garden. They like the roots of young corn, as much as you do the tender ears. In fact, if wireworms get to your corn planting first, you won't have much of a crop. They also have a fondness for beans, peas, lettuce, radishes and young onions. They also go for flowers such as phlox, dahlias, asters and young gladiolus bulbs.

The accompanying Garden-Graph shows how wireworms make underground attacks on young bulbs. They are the larvae of click beetles and are to be found throughout the country. They are especially troublesome among plantings made in recently turned soil.

Plants attacked by wireworms soon begin to look sickly, and when such plants are dug up it will be found that the worms have eaten practically all the roots. These pests are frequently found where the ground is low and mucky, as well as in light soils.

One effective way of ridding a small garden of wireworms is to trap them by appealing to their greediness. Place a slice of potato or carrot underground, as illustrated. Have it spitted with a small stick so it can be easily pulled up. The wireworms which will be found clinging to the bait can then be destroyed.

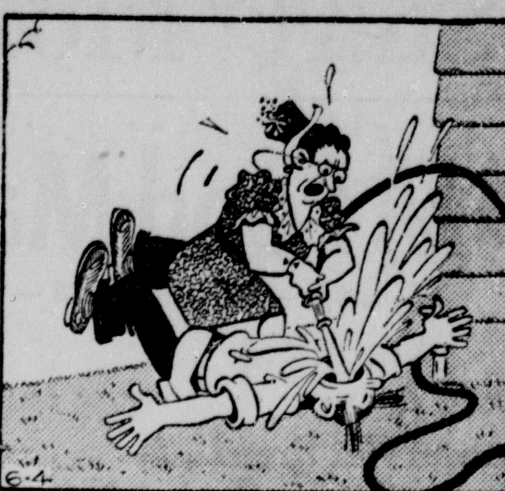

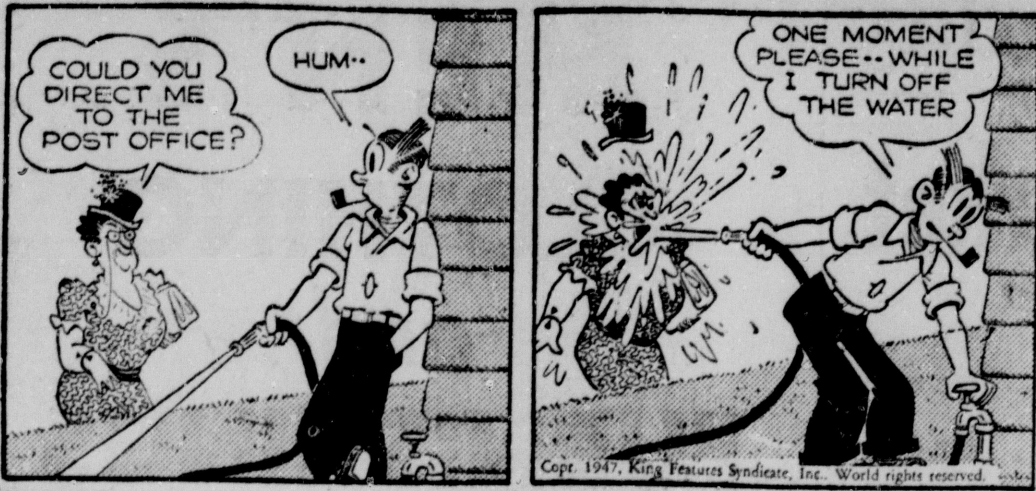

The wireworm usually is about one and one-half inches long, slim and either orange-brown or yellow in color. As these worms live to the ripe old age of five or six years they prove to be a perennial problem once they infest a garden.

Garden Fillers Oyster-shell scale natches during the latter part of this month. It can be controlled at this time with nicotine-spray. Watch for it, especially on lilacs.

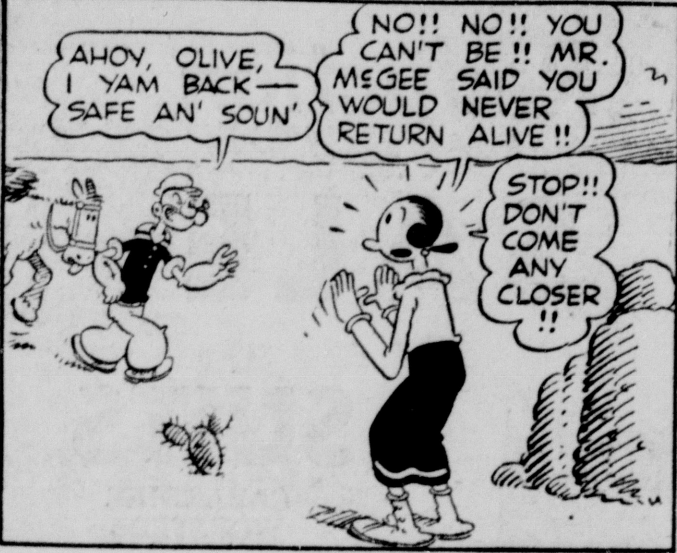

Make successive plantings, about every two weeks, of beans, peas, radishes, beets, carrots, lettuce, spinach and sweet corn that you may enjoy a longer season of these favorites.

2. What is a "kiss-me-quick"?
3. What produces the greatest amount of oxygen in the world?

Words of Wisdom

Depart from the highway, and transplant itself in some enclosed ground, for it is hard for a tree that stands by the wayside to keep its fruit until it be ripe. —Chrysostom.

Hints on Etiquette

Shouting indignant comments to the person who is driving in a car next to you, is embarrassing your companion in your car and shows you up as an uncontrolled person of bad temper.

Today's Horoscope

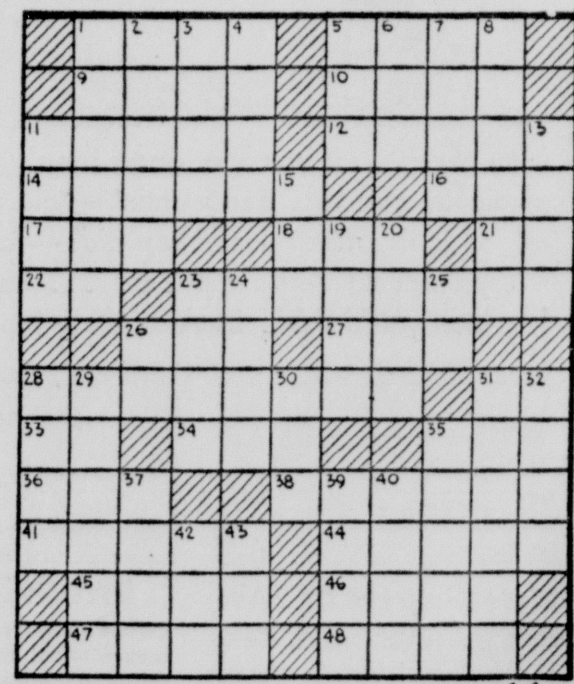

Energetic, compelling, a clear thinker, shrewd and cautious, you are successful in almost all you undertake, unless your better judgment yields to outside influences. You are sympathetic, loving and understanding, and your home is very dear to you. Today is good with a pleasant turn of events. Better look, listen, enjoy and say nothing. You will also enjoy much happiness and some good fortune in your next year. Forge ahead in all things. Court, marry and commence new undertakings if desired. Born today, a child will be energetic, forceful, ambitious, courageous, witty, quick-thinking, somewhat exacting, intellectual and kind-hearted, popular and successful.

One-Minute Test Answers

NEW YORK, June 4 — Philadelphia's Saturday night listen to station KYW for sportscaster Bob Allman and the weekly review of sporting events. A regular feature on the program is a salute to an outstanding athlete of the week.

Bob once received an award himself, in 1939, as the "most courageous athlete of the year." He was pretty well known in local circles as a wrestling star at the University of Pennsylvania. Bob is blind.

He's got the sporting bug like a Brooklyn Dodger fan, of which there certainly is no greater. Only Bob's interest in sports is universal; a Brooklyn fan's is usually limited to one enthusiasm.

EVERY WEEK, Sportscaster Allman feels he ought to take in at least a couple of baseball games to keep his hand right in the sporting world, even if he has to sneak off from his law office to do it. He's a five-day-a-week lawyer and insurance broker and once-a-week sportsman, plus the few afternoons he spends at the bench—in the ball park.

Bob and an old classmate, Bob Paul, are familiar sights around the ball park, with Bob Allman totting his braille slate and stylus. He can hear the crack of the bat when a player connects, but friend Paul supplies the details. . . right fielder coming in under a fly ball . . . got it.

KYW's program manager bumped into Allman a couple of months ago at a sportswriters banquet, when they got to talking about creating the Saturday show. It went on the air March 29.

Bob keeps up with the sporting world through the daily newspapers which someone reads to him, and then on Friday night, the pair of Bobs start whipping up the next day's script, Allman in Braille, Paul on the typewriter.

Kiwanis Playground Program To Start Monday

CHILDREN WILL REGISTER AT TED LEWIS PARK

Activities For All Ages
Planned For Youth
Of Community

Kiwanis program of supervised play ground activities gets underway at Ted Lewis park Monday.

Under the supervision of Jim Kirkpatrick the project will be operated Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each week until August 10.

Registration in all age groups will be held Monday with the planned program to get underway on Tuesday, according to the present tentative plans.

MR. KIRKPATRICK, athletic coach last school term at Jackson township high school, has extensive experience in playground work and has planned full program for the youth of the community.

Planned by the youth service committee of the Kiwanis club, the project is aimed at providing wholesome recreation for children during vacation months. Supervised play is recommended by leading authorities as one of best methods of reducing juvenile delinquency in communities.

Cooperating with the Kiwanis club in the project are the city board of education and the Ted Lewis park commission. Salary of Mr. Kirkpatrick will be paid by the board of education. Some of the equipment used in the activities will be furnished by the park board.

A large group of youngsters is expected to participate in the program, the first of its kind offered youngsters here.

PICKAWAY CLASS RETURNS FROM CAPITAL TRIP

Members of the graduating class of Pickaway township high school have returned to their homes after a six days trip to Washington D. C. While there they made a tour of the capitol and witnessed a session of congress, and visited library of congress, the White House, Washington Cathedral and many other historic places of interest.

They toured by automobile to Arlington, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon and returned by boat up the Potomac river, and visited the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland. On Decoration day they attended the impressive services at Arlington, Virginia and witnessed the decorating of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Mrs. Thomas Heffner former graduate of the Pickaway school and niece of Mrs. Cora Rader Hood, Route 1, and Miss Jean Conway, Washington D. C. residents visited with the group while they were in the city. Friday evening the class was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. ## Steps to GOOD MILKING

TO PRODUCE HER GREATEST quantity of milk, a cow must be properly milked. The new fast milking plan will save time, produce cleaner milk, more milk and reduce the number of cases of mastitis or garget.

NATURE'S WAY of getting the cow to "let down" her milk is by letting the calf nurse.

THE CALF'S WARM, MOIST MOUTH stimulates the cow to "let down" her milk. This same "let down" can be quickly obtained by washing the cow's udder and teats with a cloth wrung from warm water. WIPING AND MASSAGING THE UDDER and teats also promotes faster "let down" and more milk as well as cleaner milk with a lower bacteria count.

Proper buildings and equipment are most important in the production of Good Quality Milk—Sanitary Practices are essential.

River Still Rising, Farmers Face Loss

Hundreds of acres of corn and wheat on farms adjacent to the Scioto river in the Circleville area were inundated Wednesday. At noon the water level was still rising, and the flood damage to crops and livestock was expected to run into many thousands of dollars.

The stage of the Scioto at Circleville measured 19.60 at 8 a. m. Wednesday and it had passed the 20-foot mark by noon. The flood stage is 14 feet. The measurement was 17.59 feet at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday.

U. S. Route 23 near the Pickaway-Franklin county line was closed to traffic Tuesday night but it was reopened shortly after 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Sections of State Routes 56 and 104 were closed by the flood waters, and County Engineer Henry McCrady reported that flood waters covered the Canal road and old Route 22 which is now a part of the county road system.

Back water from the Scioto washed out the ball games at Ted Lewis park, and a "lake" was created by water which backed through sewers along the Norfolk and Western railway on the west side of the park.

Observers said the flood situation in the lowlands along the Scioto near Circleville was the worst since 1945.

CHARLES CARTER, Circleville weather observer, reported that in the 10 hours ended at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday the Scioto rose 3 and 1/2 feet at Circleville. Shortly before noon Wednesday reports from Columbus said the Scioto at that point was slowly receding, in fact it was stated that it dropped from 9.7 feet to an 8-foot level in 24 hours, a decline of 1.7 feet.

Carter predicted that the river near Circleville will reach a crest by nightfall Wednesday and will then start to recede—unless more severe rainfall again sends the stream on a new rampage.

The official weather forecast is warmer Wednesday night and Thursday—with scattered showers Thursday.

The prediction of more rain in Ohio Thursday tended to increase apprehension among the state's farmers and folks living near flooded streams.

Flood waters were receding and muddy fields were drying

COLORED OLEO LAW FAVORED

Bill May Not Reach Floor; Cigaret Tax For Bonus Dies In Committee

COLUMBUS, O., June 4—The senate-approved bill to permit the sale of colored oleomargarine in Ohio was recommended for passage today by the house committee on organization of state government.

The vote was 10 to 5, with Chairman Kirkpatrick (R-Knox) and Rep. Thompson (R-Lucas) not being recorded.

The bill still faces a fight as it now goes to the house rules committee where one member stated "it will never reach the floor."

THE EXTRA one-cent-a-pack cigarette tax to help finance the proposed soldier bonus, as well as one-third of the proposed 75 million dollar first bonus payment, fell by the legislative wayside today.

The cigarette tax, which with the million-a-month from state revenues would have paid for the 300 million dollar bonus over a 15-year period and made a real estate levy unnecessary, was thrown out by the house-senate conferees working out the bonus differences between the two houses.

The conferees agreed on all

SENATE GROUP FAVORS BILL TO MERGE SERVICES

WASHINGTON, June 4—The senate armed services committee today recommended passage of President's Truman's Army-Navy unification bill.

Twelve of the 13-member committee voted to report out the bill, but three attached reservations to leave them free to seek floor amendments.

Absent was Sen. Edward V. Robertson (R) Wyo., foe of merger and critic of the milder unification measure.

65 CHS Graduates Awarded Diplomas

Sixty-five boys and girls of the Circleville community Wednesday had completed high school and were planning for college or fulltime work.

Climax of 12 years of study came Tuesday night when diplomas were presented at the 89th annual commencement exercises in Circleville high school auditorium.

"EDUCATION FOR LIFE" was the subject of the commencement address by the Rev. L. C. Sherburne, rector of St. Philip's Episcopal church. He urged the graduates and the audience to develop intellects, culture, morals and religion.

He stated that education is not confined to schools. "A very liberal education can be obtained outside schools. Education goes beyond sports and books". He urged cultivation of tastes in literature, art, music, theatre. He said education was not complete with development of a moral sense. The speaker said this included more than being "good", it included duties to society and said the greatest contribution to the world is individual effort, not thinking as everyone else does.

The Rev. Mr. Sherburne said religion was morality lifted to tenth degree. He closed by stating "education flings a challenge to this class and the public, a call to develop the intellectual, esthetic, moral, and religious in life and live in the best sense of the word, deriving from life the riches and satisfaction".

BIG INDUSTRY PREPARING FOR COAL STRIKE

Dealers Worry About Supply For Homes, Schools, Small Business

PITTSBURGH, June 4—Big industry girded itself today for a possible soft coal strike June 30 when federally operated mines are returned to their owners.

While John L. Lewis and the northern coal operators jockeyed for position in contract negotiations, the steel industry, fabricators, railroads and steel-dependent firms raced against time to build up their coal reserves in anticipation of the miners' traditional policy of "no contract, no work."

A spokesman for the coal operators said the sudden breakdown in negotiations in Washington could mean but one thing—that Lewis will not waive his five major demands and, failing to gain them, he will call out his 400,000 diggers.

At the same time, coal production was at peak levels and every available coal car, river barge and truck were being pressed into service to build up the stockpiles.

COAL RESERVES at industrial plants, some covering many acres, were rapidly growing as steel men sought to forestall possible shutdowns within their own industry in event the strike materialized.

The solid fuels administration reported soft coal production across the nation was 35.6 per cent above the 1946 level. Output from January to May 17, 1947, was estimated at 238,727,000 tons as compared with 174,744,000 for the same period in 1946.

However, in 1946, Lewis called

WASHINGTON, June 4—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson told the senate banking committee today that the end of household sugar rationing is drawing "very close."

Anderson said he opposes the McCarthy bill for immediate decontrol of sugar mainly because he fears there might be a rush of buying by industrial users seeking to protect themselves against possible price increases next year.

The agriculture secretary, who administers sugar rationing under the extension to Oct. 31 granted by congress last March, said indications point to a price increase of two and one-half cents a pound when controls come off.

U. S. DEMANDS COUP LETTERS

Documents Reported To Have Forced Resignation Of Hungarian Premier

WASHINGTON, June 4—The United States today demanded copies of documents said to have been used in the Communist-inspired coup which ousted Ferenc Nagy as premier of Hungary.

The demand was made to the Soviet chairman of the allied control council for Hungary. The documents reportedly were used to force Nagy's resignation.

At the same time, it was reliably reported in Washington that Hungarian minister Szegedy-Maszak would ignore the new, pro-Communist Belgrade government's order that he return home for "consultation."

Although the Hungarian legation declined to confirm the report, it was learned from responsible sources that the envoy had made his decision known to the state department.

VIENNA, June 4—Hungarian refugees arrived in Vienna today with reports of suppression and kidnappings by Communist "political police" both within and beyond the borders of Hungary.

GARSSON SAYS HE HELPED NOT 'GYPPED' U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 4—Munitions-maker Henry Garsson described himself today as a wartime benefactor of the government rather than a conspirator against it.

He added that he gave these processes to the country without compensation.

Garsson was testifying for the third day in the war fraud conspiracy trial of himself, his brother Murray, and Ex-Rep. May (D) Ky.

TRUMAN URGES SOLONS TO VOTE WAR TRAINING

President Declares Program Necessary To Protect U. S. Against Aggression

WASHINGTON, June 4—President Truman declared today that universal military training is necessary to aid in protecting the United States against aggression and to "perpetuate the freedoms for which millions shed their blood."

The chief executive in a letter to congressional leaders urging speedy congressional action on the UMT program, also asserted that it would help to "hasten the advent of universal disarmament and peace through the United Nations."

Mr. Truman, in the letter to Senate President Vandenberg (R) Mich., and House Speaker Martin (R) Mass., transmitting the recent report of the presidential advisory commission in universal training said:

"I urge that the congress give early consideration to the subject of universal training."

MR. TRUMAN noted specifically that the commission found universal military training is:

"... An essential element in an integrated program of national security designed to protect the United States against possible aggression, to perpetuate the freedoms for which millions shed their blood, and to hasten the advent of universal disarmament and peace through the United Nations."

Mr. Truman told congress that the commission, under Chairman Karl T. Compton, atomic bomb scientist and president of

12 LOST WHEN ORE FREIGHTER SINKS IN LAKE

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 4—Twelve members of the crew of the ore freighter "Emperor" were believed to have perished today when the ship struck a rock and sank in Lake Superior.

The U. S. Coast Guard cutter Kimball rescued 21 members of the crew of the ill-fated ship, owned by the Canadian steamship lines.

Among the missing were two women who were employed in the galley of the Emperor.

The body of one woman was recovered by the Kimball, and it was brought to Ft. William with the 21 survivors.

Among the 11 missing was the master, Capt. Elden Walkinshaw, of Collingwood, Ont., and his first mate, Jack Morey. The Emperor, a 37-year-old ship of 8,000 tons registry, struck Canoe Rock, one and one-half miles north of Isle Royal, about 3:10 a. m. (EST), and sank within five minutes.

Vets' Homesite Action Planned; Ordinances Up At Long Council Session

Request from the Chamber of Commerce for free installation by the city of water mains and sewage facilities for a war veterans' homesite project will be discussed at a joint conference of city councilmen and spokesmen for the Chamber.

This was decided at the council meeting Tuesday night after a lengthy discussion of the request. Attending the session were members of a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce with John Magill, Chamber president, as spokesman.

Mack D. Parrett, a real estate agent, presented the Chamber's request originally at the May 20 council meeting. Council then took no action. A week ago the board of directors of the Chamber voted to press the matter and the committee was named to attend Tuesday night's council session.

IN OPENING the discussion Mr. Magill reminded council that the Chamber's request was presented May 20 by Mr. Parrett. Mr. Magill said the project needs 780 feet of water lines, 780 feet of sewer lines, and a street cut through.

He said the Chamber of Commerce will make no profit on the civic project which Mr. Magill emphasized is solely for the purpose of providing homes for World War II veterans.

It is hoped to sell all of the 21 lots to veterans within the next two weeks, Mr. Magill disclosed, under conditional sales contracts. The project, he added, is aimed to curtail the existing housing shortage in Circleville.

John C. Goeller, council president, declared that before council could definitely act the Chamber of Commerce must

DEMOCRATS ASK TRUMAN DELAY TAX CUT VETO

WASHINGTON, June 4—President Truman was being urged today by Democratic senators to delay his expected veto of the GOP tax reduction bill until June 10—to confront to the minority position taken when the legislation was before the senate.

Legislative action was completed on the four billion dollar tax relief bill but its transmission to the White House was held up until today for the signatures of House Speaker Martin (R) Mass., and Senate President Vandenberg (R) Mich.

Administration lieutenants forecast with confidence that Mr. Truman would veto the measure and that his veto would be sustained in the senate.

CITIZENS VOICE PROTESTS AT COUNCIL MEET

Long Session Ends With Plan For Citizens, Council To Consider Problem

Question of restoring Circleville's fire alarm system will be discussed by members of the city council as a committee of the whole in conference with a 10-member committee of citizens representing the more than 1,000 signers of petitions.

This was decided at a lengthy meeting of the council Tuesday night during which two and one-half hours were devoted to the pro-and-con discussion of council's May 20 action in voting to discard the alarm system and in ordering removal of the 24 alarm boxes and the wiring.

MORE THAN 150 spectators jammed the council chamber and overflowed into the city hall's second floor hallway.

While heated discussion raged three petitions carrying the signatures of residents of all sections of the city rested on the desk of Clerk Fred Nicholas. The petitions demanded that the May 20 council action be rescinded and that the alarm boxes be re-installed.

Although it was asserted by Councilman George L. Crites early in the meeting that the cost of an effective alarm system would be $35,000 it was later revealed that the 24 alarm boxes could be "re-built" and put in proper condition at a cost of about $45 per box or a total of approximately $1,000.

Chief among the several spectators who spoke out relative to the alarm system abandonment were Wilson R. "Pete" Clark, Lewis "Tate" McClarren, and James I. Smith, Jr.

After it was decided by unanimous vote of council to continue the discussion at a conference of the council as a whole and the citizens' committee, John C. Goeller, council president, appointed Mr. Clark chairman of the citizens' committee. Goeller named Councilman John W. Eshelman chairman of the council committee but shortly before adjournment and after Eshelman disclosed that he expected to be out of the city for two weeks Goeller appointed Councilman Crites as chairman of the council committee of the whole.

SOON AFTER the round-the-room debate on the fire alarm system abandonment got under way Mr. Smith arose among the spectators. After emphasizing that he was not speaking on behalf of the petitioners Mr. Smith said abandonment of the alarm system was "unfortunate" and he asked council for the reasons for the abandonment.

Councilman Crites replied that

CONVICTION OF EISLER GUILTY AS TRIAL OPENS

WASHINGTON, June 4—The United States government urged a federal district court jury today to find Communist agent Gerhart Eisler guilty of contempt of the house un-American activities committee.

U. S. Attorney William Hitz opened the case against the alleged Moscow-American Communist liaison man before Federal District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

Hitz told the jury the government would show that Eisler was subpoenaed to testify Feb. 6 before the un-American group, a duly constituted committee of congress.

On that date Hitz said, Eisler appeared before the committee but refused to be sworn or testify unless he were first permitted to read a statement.

Hitz said Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., committee chairman who will be a witness at the trial, told Eisler he could read any statement he wished at the conclusion of his testimony, but could not read it before he was sworn.

CITIZENS VOICE PROTESTS AT COUNCIL MEET

The system was not "reliable" for the past 10 years; that its discard had been discussed in the council for the last three or four years, that the system was installed 52 years ago and was "completely worn out," and that rather than repair the system "at a cost of $15,000" or to pay "$35,000 for a new system" council decided to discard the alarm boxes. He added that in 1946 "only three calls" were received over the alarm system and two of these were false alarms. He asserted that one fire call cost $1,000.

Asserting that other cities are abandoning their fire alarm systems Councilman Crites declared that the "telephone company is now doing a very good job" and that the "time required to get central now averages only three seconds." He said the telephone system is "far more reliable" than a fire alarm system.

"We need a lot of things more than we need a fire alarm system at $35,000," declared Councilman Crites. "The fire alarm system passed out with the fire horses."

At this juncture Mr. McClarren arose among the spectators and said: "Mr. Crites wants to put us back 40 years, in those days when there was a fire everybody grabbed a bucket and ran."

ANOTHER SPECTATOR arose and after stating he lived on Barnes avenue said: "We have no water, no sewers, no lights, and no fire alarm box."

Councilman William M. Reid retorted that council recently authorized installation of water and sewers on Barnes avenue.

At this point Councilman Boyd L. Horn — the lone councilman who at the May 20 council session voted against abandonment of the fire alarm system — arose and asserted he did not "agree at all with Mr. Crites."

"Circleville residents deserve fire protection," Councilman Horn said. "An auto was afire a few nights ago and the owner had to go to three houses before he located a telephone to call the fire department."

Councilman Horn said the fire hazards at the south side of Circleville are "dangerous" and that Councilman Crites' figure of $35,000 was "not correct."

"I believe we can install a new fire alarm system for $18,000," Councilman Horn said, "and if we save one life the money will be well spent."

A feminine spectator at this point declared: "We don't want the alarm system abandoned."

"I am interested in the south end," declared Councilman Crites. He was interrupted by a male spectator who commented "and you have a telephone, too." Councilman Crites reiterated that the city does not have "$35,000 to spend for a new alarm system."

At this point Mr. Smith came to the defense of the councilmen who voted to discard the alarm system. Mr. Smith said he did not believe the people understood the circumstances.

"Understanding the situation now," Mr. Smith said, "I believe council's action was wise. I don't think we should continue with a system which is inadequate. A fire alarm system should have more boxes. I am not saying I am against a fire alarm system. I don't want to criticize council. I think they have given this question serious consideration."

Mr. Smith then suggested placing part of the fire equipment and some of the firefighters south of the Norfolk and Western railway right-of-way.

Councilman Robert E. Adkins declared that fire protection should be provided for sections where there are few telephones and he approved a suggestion which had been made for placing telephones outdoors at strategic points for sending fire alarms instead of trying to repair the old alarm system.

Councilman Ray Cook said that Edwin Jury, manager of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone company, told him that telephones are "not available."

He added that a severe storm in the east end of Circleville a year ago disrupted the fire alarm system, that it has been "no good since then," and that this project two weeks ago but if the Chamber of Commerce will sell the lots to GIs at low

non-profit prices I might go along."

"Eighteen ex-soldiers have it 'has turned out to be a corpse.'"

Councilman Cook continued that "if the people want a fire alarm system the matter should be given serious consideration." He added that "I am willing to put it on the ballot and let the people vote on spending $35,000 for a new fire alarm system," but the idea of "splitting the fire department equipment and manpower and putting part in the south end just will not work."

At this point Mr. Clark arose among the spectators and commented:

"When a storm damages the telephone lines the telephone system is not abandoned." He suggested that the alarm boxes be put back on the poles and that an electrician be employed to examine them and put them in working order.

This proposal was endorsed by Councilman Horn who said an electrician informed him a few days ago that he boxes can be repaired. The councilman also suggested installation of several more boxes.

Under questioning Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the cost of repairing the old alarm system would be about $45 per box.

Chief Wise added that for five or six years I have been trying to get something done but no one was interested. He said also that in recent years the council voted a $500 appropriation annually for upkeep of the alarm system but no funds were thus appropriated for 1947.

Mr. McClarren declared that if the city would advertise for repairs to the alarm system the cost of the repairing, in his opinion, would not exceed $5,000.

Councilman Horn asserted that at a repair cost of $45 per box the cost of putting the 24 boxes in shape would amount to only about $1,000. "This would be money well spent for Circleville," Councilman Horn said.

Chief Wise said that new alarm boxes cost $120 each.

"What is $120 for a few more fire alarm boxes," commented Councilman Horn.

COUNCILMAN Eshelman presented a motion that a citizen committee of 10 meet with the council as a committee of the whole for further discussion of the fire alarm question.

"It would upset me if I had no telephone and the fire alarm system were cut out," Councilman Eshelman said.

"There is a lot more to this than can be decided tonight," Councilman Crites said.

"Why can't we hire a local electrician to put this alarm system in shape," Councilman Horn asked.

"What was the big hurry in taking the alarm boxes down?" asked Mr. Clark. "Wouldn't it have been a good idea to test each box before removing it? I believe the council made a mistake."

Clerk Nicholas then called the roll on the motion. The vote was unanimous.

Following the council session Councilman Horn said he desired to express his appreciation to the citizens who attended the meeting.

He said that he desired to express his appreciation to the citizens who attended the meeting.

told me they are prepared to buy one of these lots and to build a home," Councilman Horn asserted. "I believe the council should go along with the Chamber of Commerce."

Mr. Magill then proposed a joint conference of representatives of the city council and the Chamber of Commerce for further discussion of the Chamber's request. On the roll-call the motion was passed by unanimous vote. The date for the conference was not set.

THREE WOMEN spectators led a lively discussion which followed their oral protest of what they termed the use of the street for garage purposes by Winner's garage, 205 South Pickaway street. The women live near that place of business.

The women said that wrecked cars are parked in the street and on the sidewalk, that mechanics hammer all night "seven nights a week" on cars in the street, and one woman invited members of the council to "come there about 2 a. m. and get an earful." Another woman said she hadn't had a "good night's sleep in months."

City Solicitor George Gerhardt declared the city had no ordinance covering a situation of this kind. Councilman George L. Crites asserted there was "little council can do about this," and he suggested the neighbors go into court and ask for an injunction.

COUNCILMAN Ray Cook sharply rapped the use of the street and sidewalk by Winner's garage and he declared "this man is encroaching on the rights" of nearby residents. He added that there should be "more arrests, oftener arrests, and a jail sentence if necessary," and asserted that the street "should not be used for the storage of wrecked cars or for an auto sales lot."

Backing the plea of the women for action by the city Councilman Horn declared: "This is up to the police and the mayor."

At this point Mayor Ben H. Gordon asserted the city has no ordinance under which an arrest could be properly made. Solicitor Gerhardt reiterated that in his opinion it was "up to the property owners to take legal action."

Councilman Cook then offered a motion to instruct the city solicitor to prepare an ordinance against noise, nuisance, and improper parking in South Pickaway street. The vote on the motion was unanimous.

BY UNANIMOUS vote the council passed an emergency ordinance suspending the rules an ordinance appropriating $50 to pay for painting a marker on a building for the guidance of airplane pilots in accordance with a new state law.

Ordinances granting a wage bonus to street workers in the city service department and fixing fees for tapping a water main were given their second readings.

An ordinance appropriating $300 to finance installation of "blinker" traffic lights at dangerous intersections was given its first reading. After Councilmen Horn and Ray Anderson had opposed the legislation a motion to pass the ordinance under suspension of the rules was defeated by a vote of 4 to 3.

played by the high school orchestra and sung by the entire audience. The Rev. Mr. Sherburne gave the invocation.

Superintendent Frank Fischer called attention to the gloomy world news of today and the problems faced by the graduating class. He said that despite the fact the war is over each commencement seems gloomier than the last. He declared the older people are to blame for the present situation which the graduates are facing but "the class is ready, willing and eager to face it."

"Dare to be Different" was the title of the address of Shirley F. Blake, salutatorian. E. Rodman Heine, valedictorian, used as his topic "The Importance of Tradition." "Dedication," an original poem, was presented by Anne Adkins Renick.

"May-Day Carol," by Deems Taylor, was sung by the girl's sextet. An ensemble from the orchestra played "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore."

PRINCIPAL J. Wray Henry presented awards to honor graduates. Scholarships were won by Heine and Miss Blake.

Kiwanis keys, presented annually to an outstanding boy and girl graduate, were won by Robert McCoy and Miss Blake. The award is based on scholarship and leadership in other activities. Mr. Henry said McCoy was a member of EMS, Stooze Club, Hi-Y, scholarship team two years, class officer two years, business manager of annual staff, in the junior class play, member of the football, basketball and track squads.

Miss Blake played in the band and orchestra four of EMS, two years class officer, member of Girl Reserves, Senior Y-Teen, glee club, sextet, in the junior class play and editor of the annual.

Diplomas were presented by C. R. Barnhart, president of the board of education to 63 seniors present. Two were absent. Miss F. Elisabeth Stevenson is ill at her home and James Wells was working out of town.

John Milton Stout, who recently returned home from military service in the Pacific, was awarded a diploma, although he did not attend classes this year. He needed only one credit when he went into service and completed the requirements while in the service. Other members of the class with military experience, who came back to finish their school work, were Leon Sims, Glenn Pearce and Wells.

RIVER IS STILL RISING HERE

Wednesday in some areas in central Ohio but further southward rivers and streams were rising and overflowing farm lands.

TWO DAYS of sunshine and rising temperatures today were helping to dry out fields, but forecasters said the good will be quickly undone by anything from a quarter to a half-inch of rain tomorrow.

Also, due to the soggy conditions of the countryside, it would take only an inch of rain to bring streams back to the flooding stages, the weatherman said.

Farmers reported that some crops already planted in the lowlands along rivers had been washed out by rain-swollen streams while others tried to reschedule plantings, delayed for weeks by almost constant rains.

EARL JONES, Ohio State University extension agronomist, said that only 35 per cent of the three and a half million acres in the state normally devoted to corn was believed to have been ploughed. However, he recommended that farmers in central Ohio still should plan on planting corn if they can get it into the ground by June 25.

If the corn can't be planted by June 25, Jones said that soybeans can be sowed up to July 1 and buckwheat and sudan grass up to July 15.

The university expert also advised farmers to plant as fast as they can plough when they get the chance and to pool resources in each neighborhood to get the greatest possible acreage planted in a short time.

Deaths and Funerals

MISS ELLA STONG

Miss Ella Stong, 90, Portsmouth, a former Circleville resident, died Tuesday in the home of her niece, Mrs. Helen Bond, at Wheelersburg, following a prolonged illness. Death was attributed to complications.

Miss Stong was born Oct. 13, 1856, the daughter of John and Christina Stong. The last member of her family, Miss Stong was a life-long member of the Lutheran church in Circleville, and her parents and a sister, Mary Stong, and a brother, Leonard Stong, are buried in Forest cemetery. A number of nieces and nephews survive.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday morning at Wheelersburg. Graveside services will be conducted at 1 p. m. Friday by the Rev. George L. Troutman in Forest cemetery, Circleville.

Know Your City Water Department

By ERVIN LEIST
Utilities Manager

What are the water rates in Circleville?

The following rates are those established by city ordinance: All users of water metered or measured service shall pay the following rates: for the first 400 cubic feet per quarter $0.45 per 100 cu. ft.; for the next 30,000 cu. ft. per quarter $0.30 per 100 cu. ft.; for the next 42,000 cu. ft. per quarter $0.15 per 100 cu. ft.; for all over 72,400 cu. ft. per quarter $0.075 per 100 cu. ft.

Minimum charge: the minimum charge in any one quarter for 400 cu. ft. of water or fraction thereof shall be $1.80 per quarter. This charge shall be increased proportionately for meters larger than 3/4 x 3/4 inch.

Discount: the foregoing water service charges are net and bills computed on this schedule if not paid within 10 days (1st thru 10th of the month) are subject to an additional charge of 5 per cent. In no case, however, shall the charge be less than 10 cents.

How do you figure a water bill? Let us take a sample problem: present meter reading 116400 cubic feet, previous meter reading 113700 cubic feet, difference 2700 cubic feet, 2700 divided by 100 equals 27-100's cu. ft. Minimum charge $1.80 for the first 4-100's cu. ft. 27 less 4 equals 23; 23 times $0.30 equals $6.90 and get $8.70 the amount of the bill. Note: the last two places in the meter reading are ciphers. Bills are rendered only for full 100's cu. ft. Fractions are taken into consideration only on "Final Bills".

Has there been a change in water rates?

No, the rate schedule remains unchanged, and can not be raised or lowered without the permission of the Trustee for the bond holders of the mortgage revenue bonds, issued to purchase the water plant and system.

What is meant by water guarantee? The owner of a property will be given water "turn-on" service upon his signature to the application form supplied by the water department. A tenant will be given water "turn-on" service upon his signature and that of the property owner to the application form. A tenant may elect to make a deposit of $5.00 for water service, prior to setting the meter, or turn-on of water to serve the premises, in lieu of obtaining the signature of the property owner. The deposit shall be returned to the depositor upon termination of service. Non-payment of a water bill constitutes a lien against a property (Ohio General Code) and as such may be certified to the county auditor and added to the real estate taxes for payment.

BLUE RIBBON 9 WINS FAST GAME BY LATE RALLY

Esmeralda Nosed Out In 56-Minute Night League Contest

Night Softball league fans were treated to a fast, close game Tuesday night at Ted Lewis park.

Blue Ribbon scored a run in the last of seventh to win 6-5 over Esmeralda in a game that took only 56 minutes to play, the fastest of the season.

With the bases loaded in the seventh Lee Siegwald blasted a long hit that scored the winning run.

ESMERALDA took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Blue Ribbon knotted the count in the third. In the fifth Esmeralda scored three runs to go ahead 5-2 but the Dairymen came right back in their half of the frame to again tie the score.

There will be no ball games Wednesday or Thursday and possibly Friday nights. Water backed up from the Scioto river through sewers has created a "lake" along the railroad tracks and threatens to cover the entire ball diamond.

VET DRIVERS KEEP LEAD IN HARNESS RACE

CHICAGO, June 4—Veteran drivers still were tops today in the harness racing program at Maywood park.

Latest winner was 47-year-old Edgar Leonard, Lincoln, Ill., who guided Edith Cash, 6-year-old pacers to a half length victory last night in the mile feature race. It was the second night of the grand circuit meeting.

The victory enabled Leonard to maintain third place in the championship.

He trails 69-year-old C. F. Rumley Sr., Princeton, Ill., and 58-year-old Archie Niles, Northville, Mich.

Edith Cash paced the mile in 2:20 and returned $3.60. It was the horse's second straight victory in the Maywood park meet.

JOE DIMAGGIO COPS AMERICAN BATTING LEAD

Reds And Indians Handed Defeats; Giants In National Lead

NEW YORK, June 4 — Joseph Paul DiMaggio, the party they said was through, was the toast of baseball's acclaiming mob today—a man who had crowded one of the great comebacks of all time into two dramatic weeks.

In that time, DiMag sparked a drive which carried the Yanks from a mediocre fourth place status to an active, challenging position, two games behind the pace-making Tigers. And that deficit may easily be rolled away today. The Yanks tangle with the Tigers in a double-header at Detroit this afternoon.

Two weeks ago, a languishing Joe DiMaggio apparently was "through", a caricature of the vaunted Yankee clipper. He was hitting less than .270, and was smarting under a $100 fine for alleged failure to "cooperate" with the management.

Yesterday, Joltin' Joe reach the climax of a long, heartbreaking comeback fight to reach the peak of his former excellence. He belted Hal Newhouser for four straight hits to zoom his batting average to a league-leading .368. A glance at recent records reveals some phenomenal statistics. Since May 18, Joe has hit safely in 16 consecutive games; he has eight hits in the last ten tries, and 33 safeties in 67 at-bats.

In addition to the Tiger defeat, the Indians and the Red Sox lost. The Browns bagged only five hits in beating the champion Red Sox and Tex Hughson, 4 to 3.

The Indians lost their game in the ninth, when Gerry Priddy belted a homer to insure a 6-to-5 victory for the Washington Senators.

In the other game in the junior loop, the Chicago White Sox topped the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 0, behind the three-hit pitching of Frank Papiash.

The National League race gave little indication of clearing up. The Giants defeated the Cubs, 8 to 3, on homers by Willard Marshall, Walker Cooper and Sid Gordon, to take over undisputed lead of first place.

Brooklyn took two games from the Pirates in a slugging double-header, 11 to 6 and 8 to 7. Rex Barney started the first game and relieved in the second to get credit for both Dodger victories.

The St. Louis Cardinals, displaying the form which brought them the 1946 flag, handed Boston Brave ace Warren Spahn his first defeat in nine starts. Stan Musial banged out his fifth homer of the year in the fifth inning to feature the 3-to-0 victory pitched by George Munger.

St. Louis didn't climb out of the National League cellar because the surprising Philadelphia Phillies downed the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 1. Schoolboy Rowe won his seventh game against a single defeat. The only run the Reds scored was a seventh-inning home run by Eddie Miller, his 12th of the season.

OHIOAN KO'S MILLS

LONDON, June 4 — Freddie Mills, last of Britain's world championship prospects in the heavier classes, was eliminated today as a contender by a fifth round knockout at the hands of Lloyd Marshall of Cleveland, O.

BLUES RETAIN AA LEAD WITH WIN OVER BIRDS

By International News Service

The sachez-left and sachez-right of the American Association "shuffle" left the Kansas City Blues still two and a half games ahead of the pack today with the Louisville Colonels taking over undisputed possession of second place from Toledo.

The Blues maintained their lead last night by downing the Columbus Red Birds, 5 to 4, behind Frank Hiller. The New York Yankee farmhand was nicked for seven hits, but kept them well scattered to ring up his fifth victory of the season while the rest of the league still has to tag him with a loss.

Meanwhile, the Colonels, moving along slightly better than their parent Boston Red Sox, clipped St. Paul for a 4-to-2 win as they said "howdy-do-dee" once again to the Mud Hens and slipped into the runner-up position.

A split with Milwaukee put the Mud Hens in third place, three games behind the leading Blues.

Frank Snyder's crew dropped the second game with the Brewers, 9 to 3, after taking the opener 4 to 3. Both teams knocked the ball all over the lot last night with the Mud Hens picking up 5 hits in the first game and 13 in the second. Milwaukee racked up eight safeties in the opener and an additional 15 in the closing tilt.

In the other doubleheader of

NEW FEATURES INCLUDED IN 1947 CIRCLE

CHS Yearbook Records Work And Play Of Students Of Community

Residents who are interested in what goes on at Circleville high school now have an opportunity to get first hand information. This data is authentic; it was collected at the scene of activity; there are numerous pictures to heighten the effects; it is written by the students about themselves and the school Circleville supports.

The 1947 edition of the Circle, year book written and compiled by the senior class of Circleville high school, has been delivered by the publishers in time to share the spotlight of commendation week activities.

Alumni, who recall their own work on the Circle in past years, eagerly anticipate each new edition. This year's will present a new appearance. A mottled hard back with a raised tiger head in red and black is an innovation which puts Circleville's annual in the class with those usually issued by larger schools.

A LARGE photograph of the student body and faculty grouped on the school lawn and front walk is spread over the first two pages. Snapshots of students emphasize the most important stock-in-trade of the school—the youngsters. Their activities, sports, clubs, musical groups, library and office staffs, Circle and Tiger Tales staffs, are likewise recorded in pictures and stories.

Senior class pictures are individual as usual. For the first time in several years underclassmen also have individual pictures, grouped by classes. Other individual photos are of members of the board of education and faculty.

Dedicated to J. Wray Henry, principal of CHS the Circle pays tribute in these words: "With gratitude for the help and guidance he has given us throughout our four years of high school, we, the class of 1947, dedicate this book to Mr. J. Wray Henry".

PUBLICATION of a year book can be accomplished only by hard work, cooperation, ingenuity and efficiency. Months of careful planning, consultation with engravers, photographers and businessmen, writing and revising, precede each edition.

Miss Margaret Mattinson, Circle advisor, deserves praise for the splendid work she has done in guiding and advising the staff in preparation of the annual. Members of her able staff are Shirley Blake, editor-in-chief; Thomas Pettit, business manager; Lee Fischer, Rodman Heine, Joan Webb, Edna Maynard, June Lannan, Joanne Hawkes, Robert McCoy, Jo Ann Rader, Jack Pettit, Robert Turner, Virginia McCain, Anne Renick, Rosalie Bartholomew, associates. Mr. Henry is business advisor and C. F. Zaenglein took all group photographs.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT

Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress

Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

AGRICULTURAL HEALTH

FARM LAND values, that have increased 92 per cent in the last few years, are to be studied at a Washington conference set for the second week of June. It is to be attended by farm leaders, bankers and government officials. It has the backing of the President. Land values went up principally in the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard states, along the Gulf, in Michigan, and in tobacco growing areas of the south. This was due to population shifts to these districts. After World War I was the corn and wheat growing belts that witnessed the greatest land price rise.

Though the rise in agricultural land values has been troubling many economists, there are evidences that it is already halted. It has reflected the tremendous increase in farm cash income which has risen from eight billion dollars in 1939 to 24 billion in 1946. While there is a prospect of farm income turning downward, it is the object of such conferences as the one mentioned above to avoid too drastic a drop in agricultural prosperity. This is another way of saying the basic economic well-being of this country depends on its farm health. It is sometimes difficult for urban dwellers to realize that the real foundation of the United States is farming.

FEWER FRILLS FOR CARS

SUGGESTIONS are being made that expensive body trimming and numerous gadgets affixed to automobiles be reduced. Shiny new cars, resplendent with bright decoration, are mighty pleasing. Cigar lighters, radios, trick wins held wipers are all very nice. But they cost money.

There is room for two styles of cars, one following the elaborate designs now in vogue for those with the cash for them, the other, plainer, whose purpose is transportation minus frills. Many people can remember the unadorned Fords of long ago, which were stripped of all extraneous decoration, priced within the range of the common man.

There is a definite trend now toward simplicity. The high cost of living has made realistic folks think twice of what is necessary and what they can do without. Engineers and designers for automobiles would do well to give heed to it, to turn their attention to more simplification of models, or at least of some models. These, produced in great enough quantity and at reasonable prices, would guarantee profits to their makers for years to come. Americans are hungry for them.

People can drop off the front page and still be necessary to reckon with. For example, Marshal Tito.

For all the difficulty of our problems, is there any other large country with which we would swap places

ASSIGNMENT: AMERICA

By Kenneth L. Dixon
Distributed by International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 4 — Somewhere in that haven where our fallen heroes gather, there's a little gnome-like guy lounging in the sun today, chuckling softly to himself as he reads the book reviews from down here below.

And this is the story behind that last laugh from Valhalla.

It's an easy laugh, without bitterness, for Ernie Pyle was not a guy to nurse a grudge. But he was mighty humane, and it must be pleasant to see that at last they realize what he gently tried to tell them for so long.

They've just published a new book entitled "Home Country", which isn't news at all—being a collection of Ernie's peacetime columns written from 1935 to 1940—if you read Pyle regularly before his name became a wartime national byword.

But the critics have gone wild about it. They say—but let's start this story at the beginning.

During the war, Ernie's pyramiding fame hit him about like a pair of size fourteen shoes. He found it uncomfortable, unwieldy and difficult to get around in.

But more than anything else, he found it surprising and confusing. He felt he was doing approximately the same job he had been doing for the past decade. And he sincerely thought that his copy was no better, and often worse, than it had been during his peacetime wandering.

But the experts thought differently — mostly because they never bothered to read his prewar stuff. And that's what hurt Ernie.

It was considered "smart" in those days, even among some newsmen, to say, "Look how the war has improved Ernie Pyle's copy. Why, I never could stand him until he went overseas!"

Or else "the war has really made a writer out of Pyle."

Often in Italy, they would say it to his face. Ernie knew they meant it as a compliment. So he'd smile and thank them quietly, unless he knew them well. But now and then he would sound off afterwards.

Once, outside Cassino, after a former newspaperman (then a lieutenant-colonel) made such a well-meaning remark, Ernie turned to the rest of us in the tent and said irritably:

"Those guys make me sick. What he really means is that he never read anything I wrote before, so naturally it couldn't have been any good! Actually, most of this stuff I'm writing now is worse than what I used to write—because at least I was eating and sleeping decently in those days, and that means a lot to an old man."

We all grinned, and somebody shoved the needle into the fame-fidgety little man with: "Why, Ernie! now you know your typewriter is touched with genius and only produces imperishable prose. Why everybody reads Ernie Pyle nowadays!"

"Sure," said Ernie, cooling off a little, "and they read you fugitives from the city room, too, like they never did before. But that's only because the war is the most important thing you ever wrote about. It doesn't mean you're any better than you were before."

LOOKING FORWARD PAYS

One of the main differences between the fine declarer and most pretty good players is in the ability to look forward and note the likely succession of events. In some cases this is practically the same thing as mentally playing all the tricks according to one plan and perhaps seeing that it threatens to develop an unsolvable problem later. In this event, the declarer should search for an alternative that seems to eliminate that defect. If he figures out such a plan, he deserves whatever reward he gains thereby.

his Q and A leading a third heart to East. The latter returned his spade Q, and all at once South saw he was blocked by the club tops in his own hand. He therefore had to lose two tricks in spades at the end.

The other declarer profited from East's bad return of a club. He took it in his own hand, laid down his other top, then led to the Q, knowing someone would ruff this trick. He had reckoned that the probable trump division would be three with one defender and two with the other, and that the one with the larger number of hearts would be likely to have the smaller number of clubs! That is what developed. East trumped the third club with his heart 10, then returned his spade heart 10. South won with dummy's A, finessed the heart Q, laid down the heart A to clear the suit, then used the heart 2 to the 8 as a re-entry to run the clubs and discard his spades, thus making an extra trick.

CHAPTER THIRTY

DIANE WENT to the bedroom as soon as they got home and began to undress. Bill followed her.

"New dress, isn't it?"

"Yes. Do you like it?"

"I'm not sure. It's different from what you usually wear, isn't it?"

Or else it's combining it with the way you have your hair." He came to her, his eyes caressing. "I like the old way best, darling." He put his hands on her hair.

"Don't," she cried sharply, drawing away from him. Then she got control of herself. "I paid Antoine three dollars for this set! I can't have it mussed!"

Bill did not sense that her recoil was not from that. He kissed the curve of her throat, turned to the bureau. "You never used to care! That was one of the things I liked about you, that you weren't thinking all the time about how you looked." Then he was distracted from that. "Three dollars? Whew! Isn't that pretty steep?"

Diane drew a breath, that her voice might be steady. "Oh, it's a racket, I suppose!"

Bill began taking off his tie, his shirt, talking, as he did so, about the racket it was. A French name and, at that, Antoine's real name probably was John, a sleek manner and a lot of mirrors and chromium—Here Bill broke off with a wide yawn.

And Diane, slipping into thin silk pajamas, took a quick satisfaction of herself because she had skimmed through what easily could have been another small crisis between them. "Yes, I intend to be different from now on," she thought. "I'll have a great deal of fun, not unloving, but keeping a part of herself to herself, as Bill did, to which to withdraw, just as, in a house that held a great many people, you'd go to your own room sometimes, and shut its door, to save your equanimity."

Of this purpose she gave no sign to Bill. She was gay spirited when she was with him and when frequently he smiled fondly on her and she knew he was appreciating what he believed was her effort to take a new mental attitude toward having the boy, she felt no resentment. Naturally he couldn't see through a closed door!

They went to the Meadows for dinner, to the Matthewsons'. Allie, the Matthews pressed Diane's hands, whispered: "Bill's mother has told me! I think it's wonderful!" They had the Meadows in again, for bridge, and on another evening they had the Matthewsons for dinner.

"Haven't you other friends you want to invite in, Bill?" Diane asked that night, when their guests went away. As if she had only met Bill and so could not know his intimates, though she did not realize that absurdity.

"Oh, there's Dick Storey and his wife. Didn't they ask and leave cards when we first got back from Bermuda? It'd be nice to have them in some night. Though I haven't seen Dick for some time. He goes out of town a good deal and I've been too busy. Same thing with Chester Bigelow. Chet and I used to get together often. There's no question but that work and wife come between a man and his former friends."

"You never suggest that we ask Rufus Kent to come here?" She realized instantly that she had made that omission sound significant. Bill might remember what she'd said of Rufus as her lover in the movie.

But Bill did not remember it. "That's a fact, we haven't had him here but that one evening. Well, when this Thorpe case is over we'll go social, in a big way. Di. D'you know you're a very charming hostess?" Allie said that to me tonight."

He was a little anxious in his tenderness, his appreciation. "I'll do everything to help you through!"

Lois came back from her cruise, called Diane at once. And Diane, in her Algerian blue, met her for luncheon at Guileppi's. Lois wailed, on seeing her: "I was going to spring that color on this town! And the hairdresser on the boat showed me how to fix my hair that way, only I have to wait 'til mine grows longer! You always are a jump ahead, Di."

Lois had little triumphs of her own to relate. A man on the boat, the smoothest man, and every girl breaking her neck to make him, had been simply devoted to her!

Wilma and Vicky returned and, with Lois, Diane met them for luncheon. They told of their house parties, talked a great deal about the new hunt club which promised a gay winter. "You're coming into it, aren't you, Di?"

"No. I'm going to have a baby," Diane said calmly.

"Di! What foul luck!" cried Lois, adding: "I mean, because you'll be out of everything!"

Diane smiled. "Yes, I will. And was proud that she could feel different to their sympathy."

One day she met Rufus again on the street, not far from the Post building. He was hurrying along, but he stopped, drew her out of the stream of pedestrians. "Seems to me you are looking very ultra, Mrs. Arden!"

"New clothes! My hat is very, very chic, in case you don't know." She thought his face had tired lines. She asked, quickly: "When is Page coming home?"

"Next week."

"And then—"

"Yes, then."

"Good luck!"

"How's Bill?"

"He's very busy just now with some patent suit."

"And you?"

"She returned his direct glance. "Going strong."

She realized that her hand was still in his. Thinking: "What a look absorbed," she drew it away.

though irresistibly she pressed Rufus as she did so.

"As soon as Page is back, I want you both for dinner."

"Fine!" He waved his hand, strode along.

And Diane went on her way with the curious sense of comfort each meeting with Rufus left with her. Today it was for that searching look he had given her which said he wanted everything to be all right with her. She thought of it quite happily, and then that this pleasure she felt because of it, and, indeed, whenever she was with Rufus, belonged to that part of her she kept to herself.

A close friend of John Winston's had once owned the Post and for that reason he continued to subscribe to it though, long since, he had come to disapprove of its political color and what he called its radical leanings. So, on the morning of the day of his return to Grand Harbor from his motor trip, he opened it at almost the same moment he broke his egg. He put it open, beside his plate, enjoying an agreeable sense of homecoming, for here he was back to the breakfast and the newspaper he was familiar with.

When he had scanned the report of what happened on the front page he turned to the editorials. It was his habit to do this. After he glanced over them—some often were fairly conservative and therefore agreeable to him—he finished with the financial sheet.

But this morning a caption over one of the columns caught his eye.

"Rufus Kent Smells Dead Rat in Mayor Giddings' Latest Appointment."

"Oh, yes, he's that fellow who was coming here to see Page and Emily got so upset about it!"

He read the column through, growing very red in the face as he did so. Such attacks were nothing short of an outrage! If his friend, Sidney Grayson, were still alive and at the head of the paper, he'd allow no such libelous writing!

He usually walked downtown from the house. This morning he nursed his anger as he walked.

When he reached his desk he telephoned to the circulation department of the Post and curtly cancelled his subscription to the paper. "If every right-minded citizen in the city would do that, the Post would be properly rebuked."

Then he called the Mayor's office and invited the Mayor to meet him for luncheon at the Athletic Club. The Mayor should see that his friends and his party were with him. Then he passed one hand over his face as though dusting them of that unpleasant contact with the Rufus Kent sort.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, June 4

A SUDDEN and unforeseen turn of events may have force to upset or disturb well-laid plans and projects seemingly soundly established on an enduring basis. This may concern the use of funds or other financial readjustments or lack of support. Shun emotional reactions or impulsive moves, since new ideas, ingenuity or innovation may prove lucrative and sound. Keep reasonable and understanding in all contacts or ventures.

For The Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by some definite change, with plans and projects in the balance because of want of proper support, or the withdrawal of credit or finances already counted upon. Be calm and civil in sudden reversals or strange twists of events, as the bright idea, special skill or stroke of genius might have power to restore affairs to promising and long-term benefit. Suppress emotional reactions and impetuosity for happy results in business ventures and romance as well.

A child born on this day may have emotional and impulsive urges to mend matters by erratic behavior, when sound reason and a novel approach would prove more beneficial.

REBECCA ROESE BECOMES BRIDE OF GENE TOSCA

On Sunday, June 1, at three-thirty o'clock in the Lutheran church at Ashville, Miss Rebecca Roese, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roese, South Bloomfield, became the bride of Gene Lee Tosca, son of Mr. and Mrs. Quantian Tosca, Ashville. The Rev. H. D. Fudge officiated at the wedding rites before an altar decorated in a beautiful display of glads, ferns and burning-tapers.

The bride was accompanied down the white satin aisle by her brother, Edward Roese, who gave her in marriage. Her bridal gown was of heavy white slipper satin, made with a lace yoke embroidered with seed pearls, long tight sleeves and a close fitting bodice, with a full skirt sweeping into a long train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was fastened to a crown of seed pearls. She carried white carnations and gardenias tied with a bow of marquisette.

Miss Pauline Roese, sister of the bride, was maid of honor in a peach net formal frock trimmed with taffeta bows over the net. A soft crushed net open crowned hat with a short veil completed her ensemble. She carried Talisman roses and blue larkspur.

Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Lou Thomas and Miss Monna Lee Graham. Miss Thomas wore a yellow net and carried pink carnations and pink larkspur. Miss Graham was in blue taffeta and carried blue iris and blue larkspur. Both had worn identical headresses of crushed fabric and fingertip veils. Little Jimmie Hoover in a white suit, carried the ring in a lily. His little sister, Penny Sue Hoover, in a dainty pink dotted swiss dress, was flower girl and carried a basket of yellow daisies. Harold Tosca attended his twin brother as best man and Dale Schiff and Jerry Trego were ushers.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Rolland Featheringham, Ashville, presented a period of pre-nuptial music on the church organ, and Connie Johnson, Ashville, sang, "Oh Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly". At the conclusion of the services Mr. Johnson sang the "Lord's Prayer".

Mrs. Tosca selected for her son's wedding a green crepe dress with black accessories. Her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. Karl Graham, the bride's sister, wore a navy blue frock.

"Irish" Potato Today Greatest Weapon Against Famine

By RALPH L. GUYETTE
 Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The lowly potato has probably done more to save the starving people of Europe than any other single food. Yet at one time in England an association called the "Society for the Prevention of Unwholesome Diet" was formed to abolish its use. It was from the name of this organization that the potato got its famous nickname—S-P-U-D, spud.

In those early days the grubby potato was thought to carry seeds of leprosy and plague, and for centuries it went virtually unused.

Today, "Pass the spuds!" has become about as common an expression in America as, "How are you?" In fact, 14 per cent of the American diet is provided by the spud. In Europe, of course, this percentage is much higher.

Throughout the countries of Poland, France, Germany and Russia the potato has almost reached the importance of rice in the yellow man's diet.

The spud might even be called, without stretching the truth too far, the savior of the Caucasian world. For it has for centuries been the white man's buffer against the ravages of famine.

Through war years and draught years, through depressions and recessions the potato has been the one life-giving substance to remain on the barren tables of the poor.

Despite its hardness and cheapness of price it is an extremely nourishing food, providing energy out of all proportion to its monetary value. And since the human body needs food but for two purposes, to repair body tissues and to provide energy, the importance of the potato in the diet of our poorer classes can easily be seen.

IRELAND seems to have been the first country to recognize this fact. For the land of the Blarney Stone and the Shamrock nurtured and cultivated the potato until it became the favorite food.

Like all eggs in one basket, however, this one-crop existence nearly led to the country's destruction. For, in 1846 and 1847 a blight descended on the potato fields, destroying the crops and nearly the Irish nation. It was at this time that so many Irish immigrants took ship for America.

Since that time many Americans have so associated the potato with Ireland that it is popularly believed to have originated in that country. This, of course, is a fallacy.

Actually, the potato crossed the Atlantic four times before reaching Ireland. The white potato, as we know it, was developed in this country after much experimentation and a specie was then transplanted to Ireland where its cultivation became general.

Long before this time, however, back in the days when the Spaniards were conquering Peru, the great conquistador, Francisco Pizarro, found that the ancient Incas had already been cultivating the "batata," or potato, for hundreds of years.

SPRAYING—Mrs. Millie Keener keeps the insect pests in check on her Pennsylvania farm.

HARVEST—Potato digger scoops up 400 bushel to the acre.

Many wonderful tales have been told of the highly cultured Incas—among them the story of their remarkable development and cultivation of fruits and vegetables. In this field they were far more advanced than "civilized" Europe.

THE INCAS, amid their New World, savage culture, originated and successfully developed the potato until it flourished in more than a hundred different varieties, some of which were used to manufacture dyes.

By using the red sweet potato with lime juice in various proportions, the Peruvians produced marvelous permanent dyes that cannot today be manufactured even by our modern chemists.

After the Spaniards had conquered the Incas, they carried back to Spain the "batata"—undoubtedly to them, just an afterthought. But an item that was in later years to prove far more valuable than all the gold and silver bullion found in the Aztec and Peruvian empires.

From Spain the potato passed through Italy, to Belgium, and then to England. The poor clasped it to their hearts because it grew freely and in abundance.

However, it was all of two centuries before it came into general cultivation. Continuous development from then to now has given the world approximately 200 different varieties. These have been used for everything from food to fuel.

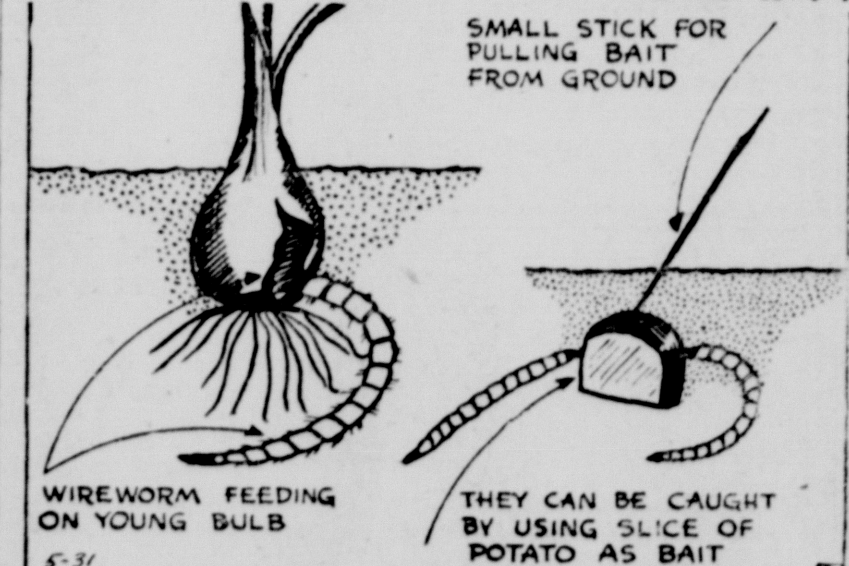

In the United States in 1946 our farmers produced a bumper crop of 478 million bushels. This is about 90 or 100 million bushels more than we need for normal consumption; so much of the surplus is being diverted to other uses.

A million bushels are going into our School Lunch programs to build up the bodies of our youngsters. Many more bushels are being diverted to starch mills and livestock pens.

Distillers have also taken 20 million bushels for distillation of alcohol, and an additional six million bushels for the making of industrial alcohol for ultimate use in the manufacture of synthetic rubber, antifreeze and other products. Then, too, much of our surplus stock has gone to feed hungry Europe.

So you see, the unobtrusive and grubby potato is not what it seems. Actually, it is an extremely important cog in the wheel of white civilization. The French call it "pomme-de-terre" or "apple of the earth," and rightly so. For the potato is truly the apple of the Occidental eye.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

WIREWORM FEEDING ON YOUNG BULB

SMALL STICK FOR PULLING BAIT FROM GROUND

THEY CAN BE CAUGHT BY USING SLICE OF POTATO AS BAIT

Beware the Wary Wireworm

IF YOU cherish home-grown sweet corn, watch out for wireworms in your vegetable garden. They like the roots of young corn, as much as you do the tender ears. In fact, if wireworms get to your corn planting first, you won't have much of a crop. They also have a fondness for beans, peas, lettuce, radishes and young onions. They also go for flowers such as phlox, dahlias, asters and young gladiolus bulbs. The accompanying Garden-Graph shows how wireworms make underground attacks on young bulbs. They are the larvae of click beetles and are to be found throughout the country. They are especially troublesome among plantings made in recently turned soil.

Plants attacked by wireworms soon begin to look sickly, and when such plants are dug up it will be found that the worms have eaten practically all the roots. These pests are frequently found where the ground is low and mucky, as well as in light soils.

One effective way of ridding a small garden of wireworms is to trap them by appealing to their greediness. Place a slice of potato or carrot underground, as illustrated. Have it spitted with a small stick so it can be easily pulled up. The wireworms which will be found clinging to the bait can then be destroyed.

The wireworm usually is about one and one-half inches long, slim and either orange-brown or yellow in color. As these worms live to the ripe old age of five or six years they prove to be a perennial problem once they infest a garden.

Garden Fillers Oyster-shell scale natcheses during the latter part of this month. It can be controlled at this time with nicotine-soap spray. Watch for it, especially on lilacs.

Ernie sincerely believed that his war-front work was no better either, but that's the only time I saw him openly explode about it—Although he had plenty of provocation.

One night in Naples, for instance, we met a world-famous author and former foreign correspondent who was coasting happily through the war on a cushy commission. Throughout the evening he paid Ernie patronizing compliments about how "this war has taught you the real art of writing!"</

NEW YORK, June 4—Philadelphia Saturday night listen to station KYW for sportscaster Bob Allman and the weekly review of sporting events. A regular feature on the program is a salute to an outstanding athlete of the week.
Bob once received an award himself, in 1939, as the "most courageous athlete of the year." He was pretty well known in local circles as a wrestling star at the University of Pennsylvania. Bob is blind.
He's got the sporting bug like a Brooklyn Dodger fan, of which there certainly is no greater. Only Bob's interest in sports is universal; a Brooklyn fan's is usually limited to one enthusiasm.
EVERY WEEK, Sportscaster Allman feels he ought to take in at least a couple of baseball games to keep his hand right in the sporting world, even if he has to sneak off from his law office to do it. He's a five-day-a-week lawyer and insurance broker and once-a-week sportsman, plus the few afternoons he spends at the bench—in the ball park.
Bob and an old classmate, Bob Paul, are familiar sights around the ball park, with Bob Allman toting his braille slate and stylus. He can hear the crack of the bat when a player connects, but friend Paul supplies the details. . . right fielder coming in under a fly ball . . . got it.

KYW's program manager bumped into Allman a couple of months ago at a sportswriters banquet, when they got to talking about creating the Saturday show. It went on the air March 29.
Bob keeps up with the sporting world through the daily newspapers which someone reads to him, and then on Friday night, the pair of Bobs start whipping up the next day's script, Allman in Braille, Paul on the typewriter.

Kiwanis Playground Program To Start Monday

CHILDREN WILL REGISTER AT TED LEWIS PARK

Activities For All Ages
Planned For Youth
Of Community

Kiwanis program of supervised playground activities gets underway at Ted Lewis park Monday.

Under the supervision of Jim Kirkpatrick the project will be operated Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each week until August 10.

Registration in all age groups will be held Monday with the planned program to get underway on Tuesday, according to the present tentative plans.

MR. KIRKPATRICK, athletic coach last school term at Jackson township high school, has extensive experience in playground work and has planned full program for the youth of the community.

Planned by the youth service committee of the Kiwanis club, the project is aimed at providing wholesome recreation for children during vacation months. Supervised play is recommended by leading authorities as one of the best methods of reducing juvenile delinquency in communities.

Cooperating with the Kiwanis club in the project are the city board of education and the Ted Lewis park commission. Salary of Mr. Kirkpatrick will be paid by the board of education. Some of the equipment used in the activities will be furnished by the park board.

A large group of youngsters is expected to participate in the program, the first of its kind offered youngsters here.

PICKAWAY CLASS RETURNS FROM CAPITAL TRIP

Members of the graduating class of Pickaway township high school have returned to their homes after a six days trip to Washington D. C. While there they made a tour of the capitol and witnessed a session of congress, and visited library of congress, the White House, Washington Cathedral and many other historic places of interest. They toured by automobile to Arlington, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon and returned by boat up the Potomac river, and visited the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland. On Decoration day they attended the impressive services at Arlington, Virginia and witnessed the decorating of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Mrs. Thomas Heffner former graduate of the Pickaway school and niece of Mrs. Cora Rader Hood, Route 1, and Miss Jean Conway, Washington D. C. residents visited with the group while they were in the city. Friday evening the class was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Martin, friends of Miss Mildred Wertman, instructor in the school who chaperoned the group on their interesting trip.

SCIOTO SENIORS RETURN FROM CAPITAL TRIP

Scioto township high school seniors were back home Wednesday, recalling their experiences on a trip to Washington D. C. and vicinity.

Leaving here May 25 by school bus the 11 seniors and sponsors visited interesting places at Washington, the naval academy at Annapolis, Maryland, Gettysburg and other points of interest.

Superintendent A. A. White, sponsor for the boys, said the group particularly enjoyed a moonlight cruise down the Potomac river. While in Washington Mr. White visited some of the schools there.

Accompanying the group besides Mr. White, were Mrs. Athene Rodger, sponsor for the girls, and Russell Rodgers, bus driver.

Steps to GOOD MILKING

TO PRODUCE HER GREATEST quantity of milk, a cow must be properly milked. The new fast milking plan will save time, produce cleaner milk, more milk and reduce the number of cases of mastitis or garget.

NATURE'S WAY of getting the cow to "let down" her milk is by letting the calf nurse.

THE CALF'S WARM, MOIST MOUTH stimulates the cow to "let down" her milk. This same "let down" can be quickly obtained by washing the cow's udder and teats with a cloth wrung from warm water. WIPING AND MASSAGING THE UDDER and teats also promotes faster "let down" and more milk as well as cleaner milk with a lower bacteria count.

Proper buildings and equipment are most important in the production of Good Quality Milk—Sanitary Practices are essential.
